BITS and PIECES

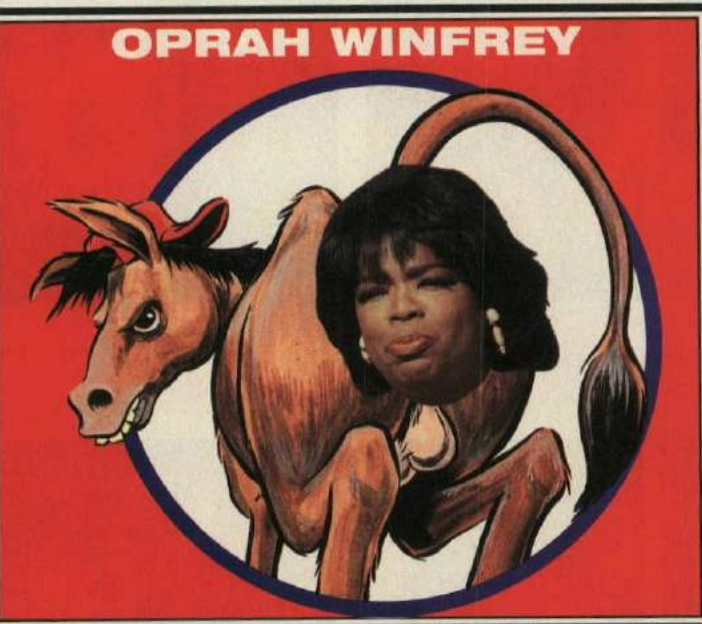

ASSHOLE OF THE MONTH

Assholes come in many shapes and sizes, especially when the sphincter set is Oprah Winfrey. Sometimes the bloated shit vent that is Oprah Winfrey looks like not much more than a human balloon; at other times she resembles nothing less than a simian blimp. From now on, no matter what manic fluctuation of girth and weight pertains to the nation's preeminent talk-show 'ho, Oprah Winfrey will have consistency in her life. She will forever reign as HUSTLER Magazine's Asshole of the Month for May 1995.

Not everybody hates Oprah Winfrey, but the world would be a better place if more people did. Of the estimated 20 million television viewers who watch Winfrey's syndicated talk show every day, maybe a dozen tune in for reasons other than fascinated outrage, appalled enthralment, morbid curiosity, terminal boredom or sick need.

The typical Oprah Winfrey program has the entertainment value of a gruesome car wreck. Oprah's moralizing and bromides generally have the redeeming social value of a color commentator at a televised gang rape. Oprah's on-screen presence indulges in flurries of tearful empathy and concern, but the sincerity and depth of her warmth registers a few degrees chillier than that of a snake, a creature defined by its cold-bloodedness.

"I'm not a sleaze," opines Oprah, who since childhood has been driven by wishful thinking. Perhaps, in her wildest imagination, Oprah is not in and of herself "marked by low ethical standards and low artistic quality," but she certainly has been associated with a lot of sleazy shit that is. A sampling of The Oprah Winfrey Show's celebrated themes: When the Baby-Sitter Marries "Daddy," Love-Hungry Landlord Wanted More Than Rent, A Woman Saved His Life After He Was Raped by Three Men, The "Other Woman" Was a Man!, Jilted Wife Fights Fire With Fire, King of Cads Barés His Soul, The Girl Who Loved Daddy Too Much..., "My Husband Left Me—for Another Man," Trapped at Home—Because She Feels So Ugly.

Oprah's list of standard topics might easily have been cribbed from the headlines blazoned at any grocery check-out counter; yet winsome Winfrey has the wide-face gall to whine: "The only thing I hate about the press is the tabloids. I think they're verbal pornography."

Hypocrisy comes as easily to Winfrey as does shoving three chili dogs with extra kraut down her gullet. Brags Oprah: "One of the reasons I believe I have been able to achieve what I have is because I have sought truth in my life." But truth, like sleaze, is relative.

Publicist Colleen Raleigh—who has been instrumental over the past eight years in presenting Oprah as "happy, harmonious and humane" rather than as a pig—recently quit the lucrative Oprah gig because she could no longer "in good conscience" stand the "dishonesty and chaos" around the show. Things have to get pretty bad to disturb the conscience of a veteran publicist.

Oprah has gotten a ton of mileage out of her deprived childhood, but her sister, Patricia Lee, remembers things differently: "[Oprah] exaggerated how bad we had it, I guess to get sympathy from her viewers and widen her audience." Patricia also dropped the bomb that at age 14 Oprah had miscarried a baby boy, news that conflicted with Oprah's contention, until 1990, that teen pregnancy was one pitfall of the street that she had avoided.

The dishonesty of Winfrey's denials is nothing compared to her insidious avowals. That she was molested, that she was abused, that she had sloppy affairs with men, that she had seen a ghost in her house—all these admissions she made on national TV, supposedly spontaneously. "I just wanted to say, 'I understand,'" she explained during follow-up coverage after proclaiming on-air that she was a victim of sexual abuse. Her most recent cathode confession, that she had smoked cocaine during her early 20s, came after Winfrey's ratings had been slipping.

Oprah blamed a man for introducing her to the drug. Oprah always has something to blame. She is lard-prone as an apology for being rich and famous. "Every bad relationship I've ever been in is the result of my having been abused."

The Oprah Winfrey Show will be worth watching the day Oprah Winfrey admits coast-to-coast that she's a fat cunt solely due to the fact that she's an Asshole.

John Salvi: A 22-year-old hair-dressing student, John Salvi, was captured in Virginia and charged with murdering two employees of a Boston-area abortion clinic and of shooting and maiming a bunch of other people as an affirmation of life values. Though Salvi denies guilt, he has said that if convicted, "I wish to receive the death penalty." Salvi vows that if acquitted, "I will become a Catholic priest." Whether he's fingering altar boys or squeezing off fatal rounds at women, John Salvi will always be an Asshole.

Boris Yeltsin: As Chief Executive of one of the world's largest emerging democracies, Russian Prez Boris Yeltsin looks like a fascist despot to the bomb-dodging freedom fighters of Chechnya. Boris doesn't like rebels or, for that matter, anyone who disagrees with him. In 1993 he had troops blast his own parliament, tactics of an Asshole.

From Gags to Riches

Ever wonder how a girl gets started in the adult-film business? In many cases, the butt starts here, in the Bits & Pieces section of HUSTLER Magazine. Today, she may be another pretty face holding a severed cock or sniffing urine on a sidewalk; tomorrow, she could be tickling something other than funny bones as a sex-screen superstar. Stroke with us down mammary lane as we take a nostalgic look at those X-rated movie queens who began their carnal careers as Bits & Pieces models.

Leena helped pose the question, "What the fuck is wrong with us?" in our Holiday '93 issue, then used her tongue for a more suitable end on the blue screen.

Nikki Dial made her HUSTLER debut as a tight-lipped newscaster in our August '92 B&P section, before stepping up to the porn mike in a venerated fuck-flick career.

Danyl Cheeks performed a Lapland lap dance in February '93. Later, she did the double-dicked doo-wop in her John Stagliano-directed debut, Bend Over Babes 3.

Sunset Thomas chewed dicks in a July '93 tribute to cannibal girls. She has since starred in ever more toothy roles in sin cinema.

Exotic fuck Alicia Rio performed a hoochie-coochie for Socks the White House cat in August '93, preparing her to engage in a different kind of Cuban slide with a better breed of pussy.

Hey, girls! Do you have a nasty sense of humor? Are you able to look sexy even while sitting on the toilet? You may have what it takes to be a Bits & Pieces model and embark on a lucrative career in adult-film making. Simply snap a few naked photos (the raunchier, the better) and mail them with the completed form below and two photocopied forms of identification to: HUSTLER's Bits & Pieces Talent Search, 9171 Wilshire Boulevard, Suite 300, Beverly Hills, CA 90210. Entrants will be forwarded to our Talent Department. From there, the sky's the limit. Good luck!

Genes That Never Fade

DNA forms the tracks on which an individual's defining characteristics travel. While each person's hereditary makeup is different in some areas, HUSTLER scientists isolated a separate and distinct sexual genetic code in men and women that motivates each gender's amorous intentions. After conducting a series of tests on couples in HUSTLER's between-the-sheets laboratory, our crack staff discovered a defining "fuck me gene" that's shaped differently in males and females, and matches a three-dimensional version of their deepest desires. No wonder we can't all get along.

A Killer Cleanser

S.K.S.— USING SCUM TO FIGHT SCUM.

Though savagely murdered by a fellow inmate while disinfecting a bathroom in Columbia Correctional Institute last year, America's most infamous cannibal, Jeffrey Dahmer, can still clean up his act. Announcing Dahmer's Serial Killer Scrub, a new tidying tool that puts the psycho's head to good use—inside the shitty bowls of prison toilets nationwide. Simply apply abrasives to the exposed ligaments hanging from Dahmer's neck, and even the filthiest criminals will discover a brighter world.

Stamp of Disapproval

The Postal Service delivered a bomb late last year when it proposed new stamps commemorating the 1945 U.S. atomic leveling of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, which killed more than 200,000 Japanese people. The nostalgic stamps, which featured illustrations of atomic mushroom clouds, were abandoned due to pressure from the White House. To fill this design void, the Postmaster General might consider a stamp dedicated to those pesky postal employees who've killed 29 fellow workers since 1983. Neither rain nor sleet nor lack of ammunition shall keep these brash mailmen from delivering their scheduled rounds.

Erecting HUSTLER's Maypole

Spring is a time of renewal, a season for planting fresh seeds in unsullied soil. Each year on May 1, HUSTLER handpicks three gynecologically certified virgins to prance around our very merry Maypole. This ritual, based on an ancient ceremonial folk dance to ensure fertility, is our way of reflecting on the potential of life's unpicked flowers. As the lusty month of May begins, HUSTLER invites readers to take a minute and perform a personalized Maypole celebration during the course of this issue. Feel the seeds sprouting as if for the first time. The world can be a happy place.

ANNOUNCING A BREAKTHROUGH IN BUBBLE BOY TECHNOLOGY...

THE BUBBLE BOY UNPLUGGED!

The Problem

Immunodeficiency is nothing to sneeze at. This rare malady is marked by an inordinately high susceptibility rate to bacteria and viruses. The life-threatening risk of infection forces the sufferer to live life in a plastic bubble without ever experiencing direct contact with the outside world. Anchored to the standard bubble-bed enclosure that maintains a pristine, artificial environment in a fixed location, a Bubble Boy like Billy cannot interact as a normal person. Never will he experience life's simplest pleasures, such as entering a whorehouse and hiring a lady for the evening. Never, that is, until now.

The Solution

Television remotes and portable phones allow people to live unencumbered by annoying cords and plugs, yet today's technology has overlooked the Bubble Boy Syndrome—until now. With the Cordless Plastic Bubble (CPB)[™], Billy can live in a special virus-free world while moving and shaking like a real fella. The CPB system includes a 900 MHz power pack (that operates on 10,000 AA batteries), a fully encased suit of acetate, a mobile IV stand and a hand-held heart-fluctuation monitor to detect sudden death. Using this technology, Billy can enter The Madame Peachfuzz Bar & Brothel, choose the woman of his dreams and, upon approval of his VISA or MasterCard, enjoy a few minutes of full-lipped bliss that the homebound Bubble Boy will never know. It's safe and, best of all, it makes this boy feel like a man.

The portable bubble power pack means a blown opportunity for Billy.

Take the Bubble Boy Challenge

Hey, Bubble Boys! Get out of the old and get into the warm, wet and wonderful world of female companionship. The CPB comes with a special penis chute that keeps the cock fully encased in plastic for the ultimate in safe and satisfying sexual activity. C'mon, burst those bubble-bound days and erect the stud that lurks inside. If not completely satisfied with the CPB, simply return the (rinsed-out) suit for a complete refund, minus $500 shipping and handling, plus $1000-an-hour service charge. FEED BACK

Bobbitt's Pay Cut

As I do with all media coverage regarding my client, John Wayne Bobbitt, I read your article on the making of his video, John Wayne Bobbitt Uncut, with tremendous interest (Like a Virgin: John Wayne Bobbitt Pops His Post-Op Cherry for Porn-Tape Posterity, February '95). Although most of the points made in the article were true, there is one glaring mistake that every member of the media has made concerning how much money John got paid. One theory quoted by the media says he received a flat fee of $1,000,000 or $1,500,000. The second, as reported by your magazine, is that he received a $2-per-box-sold fee. Based on your assumption, a top-selling adult video sells 25,000 copies. That leads your readers to assume John will make around $50,000 for his starring role in Uncut.

First of all, let me tell you that Uncut has already sold more than double that of a normal best-seller. Second, if John were my manager, and he advised me to bare the most famous penis in the world for $2 a box, I would not only fire him on the spot, but I'd advise him to check into a mental institution. I would be foolish to disclose my client's earnings from his video, but I will give you a hint: If you are correct in saying the previous pay-off record belongs to Harry Reems in Society Affair with a payday of $100,000, then let me tell you that John has not only broken the record, but smashed it to pieces. —Aaron Gordon

A. M. Gordon Communications
Las Vegas, Nevada

Actually, we thought Bobbitt had received $2 per inch, figuring that $6 was about his total take. We stand corrected.

Yes, Virginia, There Is a Ron Jeremy Fan

HUSTLER is great. I've been a subscriber for some time, and with each issue you continue to surprise, amaze and entertain me. First, your humor is classic. The insight and wit are brilliant. Your women are also outstanding. I can't tell you how many loads have been launched on your beautiful girls. While we're on the subject of models, what's up with the Adonis-type males that pose with your women? Give us average, hardworking Joes a break. Once in a while show a guy with a little gut or some back hair. I would also like to go on record as a man who admires the talents of Ron Jeremy. I think he should run for President. Finally, I think your porn reviews are fantastic. I love the colorful commentary and the pictures that accompany each title, but you could have given John Wayne Bobbitt Uncut a higher rating (reviewed as Totally Limp in Erotic Entertainment, March '95). Any man who gets his dick hacked off, sewn back on and has the balls to show the world that it still works deserves at least One-Quarter Erect. Have a little mercy. —C. G.

New Paltz, New York

On second thought, you're right, C. G.; the Bobbitt movie could have been a lot worse. It could have starred Ron Jeremy.

Hole Milk

My wife, Samantha, and I thank you for the pregnant-girl pictorial in your November '94 issue (Kelly: Knocked-up Knockout, November '94). My wife is seven months pregnant, and she keeps a sexual diary. She's given me 486 blowjobs in the past four months, and I've given her at least three sets of multiple orgasms just by sucking her big, milk-heavy jugs. Samantha wants to know if you'll consider publishing her picture in Beaver Hunt if I take some nude shots of her while she's pregnant? —B. S.

Syracuse, New York

Consider it done. Oh, and if you like lactating titties, check out our salute to milky mothers on page 7 in this issue's Bits & Pieces section.

Junk Mail

Shane and Yvonne: Party Favors

The Tupac Gift Pack

Conceived, written and photographed by Shlomo Mordechai Jewison

Life is tough. One day you're a rapper with gold and platinum albums who dates Madonna and stars in motion pictures, the next day you're a jailbird with a rap sheet as long as a brother's dick. So goes the saga of Tupac Shakur. After serving 15 days in jail for fistfighting film director Allen Hughes in 1992 and being arrested on charges of shooting two off-duty Atlanta police officers in 1993, Shakur came home to roost recently in New York's infamous Riker's Island detention center, convicted of sexually abusing a 20-year-old female fan in a hotel room. Jail is not a happy place; so we've provided a care package of personalized tokens to get Tupac through the long and lonely days of incarceration. Stay cool.

of Heroin, January '95.) You have the fucking balls to print this photo? Keith Richards is absolutely the best guitarist in the world and now is drug free. I give him credit for turning his life around. The Rolling Stones are the best rock and roll band ever! Keep up the excellent work, Mick and the boys! —E. K.

Jacksonville, Florida

The horrifying Keith Richards photo printed in the January '95 issue was not intended to be a comment on his musicianship, rather it served as an important public-service announcement depicting the damage that drug use can do to what formerly resembled a human face.

Shaken, but Still Unstirred

I strongly believe in the right of free speech and free press, but I also believe in drawing the line at hurting someone just for a laugh. HUSTLER has always been a conscience for America. People such as Jerry Falwell need to have shots taken at them. However, the shot you took at Dean Martin in your February issue ("Trapping a Rat Slacker," Bits & Pieces, February '95) was really uncalled for. Dean Martin has not been the same man since the death of his son (Dean Paul Martin Jr.). As Dean Sr. gets older, the loss seems even more heartfelt. If the man wants to be alone with his grief, why not just leave him alone? Why kick a good man when he's down? —B. S.

Lake Oswego, Oregon

We admit that our treatment of the great Dino might be taken as a slap in the face, but someone needs to step up and give this legend a wake-up call.

Going for the Jocular Vein

I read the letter in your January issue from the Bible-pushing religious fanatic who found HUSTLER's humor distasteful ("Declaration of Principles," Feedback, January '95). I'd like to say that these types of people are the first to criticize everyone but themselves. If these tightass, righteous cocksuckers don't appreciate the artistic quality that HUSTLER provides, then my suggestion to them is to crawl back under their fucking rocks and not buy the magazine. Nudity, sex and masturbation are reality. Keep up the good work, and you'll keep me up. —V. Z.

Rancho Palos Verdes, California

Name That Poon

Who is that girl with Chad Smith? The one sitting on his left on page ten in the Bits & Pieces section of your September '94 issue ("Why Is This Man Smiling," Bits & Pieces, September '94)? She's a babe! Please tell me who she is and where I can find more pictures of her. I'm currently deployed in Haiti, and I long for the day when I can get back to the States and fuck my girl till I can't no more. Right now, though, I'm content jerking off to this mystery goddess in your magazine. Thank you, HUSTLER, for the laughs and all the lovely spreads in your great mag; us GI's really appreciate it. —S. C.

Port-Au-Prince, Haiti

The goddess you refer to is named Shane and, besides being one half of the welcoming committee for HUSTLER's sweepstakes winner Chad Smith, she was featured in a lesbian layout the following month (Shane and Yvonne: Party Favors, October '94). Shane was also one of the house babes featured in last month's HUSTLER's Real World photo documentary (April '95). These editions are available through back order, S. C., but, as always, it pays to subscribe to keep tabs on our girls.

Reality, What a Concept

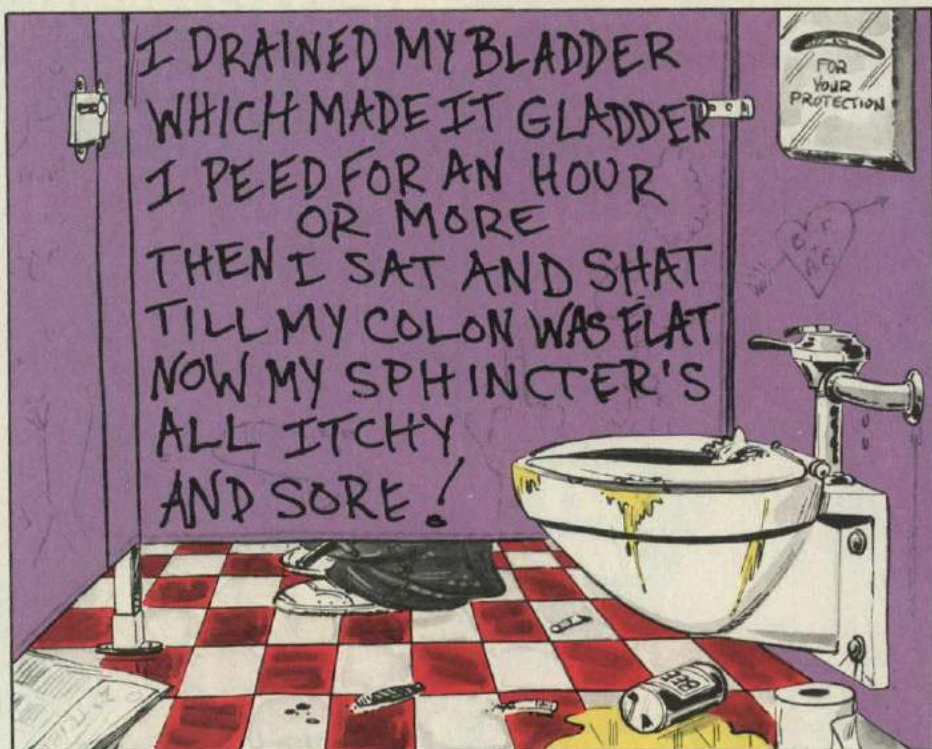

Could you please explain the following discrepancy? I received your January '95 issue the last week of October 1994, and I found your entry blank for the HUSTLER's Real World contest. The rules stated that "Entrants must be available from January 10 to February 10, 1995." I quickly sent my entry coupon on November 10, 1994. Then, the last week of December 1994, your March '95 issue arrived, announcing that these men had already been selected and had experienced their month. Obviously, HUSTLER's Real World does not operate on real time. Don't get me wrong; I will continue to appreciate HUSTLER Magazine's outrageously funny cartoons and exposés. I just wish you were uncontaminated by such bullshit as your Real World contest. —J. W.

Tucson, Arizona

Your letter arrived just in time, J. W. Between the earthquakes, fires and torrential rains we've experienced in Southern California over the past few years, time had, unbeknown to us, actually stopped in the HUSTLER offices. Thanks to your vigilance, we can now go back to the future. By the way, what's this new music called "rap," and who won the World Series last year?

If the HUSTLER Staff Worked for Other Magazines

The editors and artists of HUSTLER Magazine are uniquely suited for creating America's number-one forum of sex and irreverence. Consequently, after a stint at HUSTLER, the warped magazine professional is forever unfit to work anywhere else. But just what if some other magazine were to hire Larry Flynt's minions right out from under him? The newsstand would be a much more interesting place, that's what if. Take the boob-tube bible TV Guide, for example. From Milton Berle to Flip Wilson to Roseanne, television has perennially presented viewers with a parade of cross-dressing weirdos gussied up in the guise of entertainment. If art really does imitate life, the HUSTLER staff would entice a new group of viewers out of the closet and into the spotlight.

NEW WAVE HOOKERS 4

"To understand the true nature of the feminine mind," espouses Half Pint, the midget narrator of New Wave Hookers 4, "you must first understand the nature of the prostitute." Female sexuality's acquisitory underpinnings provide the philosophical backbone of NWH4, demented porn visionary Gregory Dark's latest eye-popping, choad-coaxing opus, a cautionary fable played out across a fantastically horny, hyper-real universe of unlimited carnal possibility. Juli Ashton gets double ass-fucked by a couple of clowns in an Andrew Blake-style setting while naked Amanda Adams begs for a share; Chasey Lain negotiates a nookie pileup between herself, faux-Arabs Tom Byron and Nick East, and pseudo-Mexicans Vixxxen and T. T. Boy; seal-men Marc Wallace and Tony Tedeschi DP Barbara Doll atop a block of ice; nurses Sandi Beach and Jewel jam gashes and lick nips as a warm-up for frog-footed physician Jon Dough's dickwad; and nine performers poke along the steps of a curving stairwell in the tape's gland finale. New Wave Hookers 4 is a triumph of eroticism and art that will blow minds and laps.

—Selwyn Harris

Lain, chain, Rain: Hookers 4.

Hookers 4: Adams and Ashton boning some bozos.

At Home: Blue helps Cummings get the point.

DON'T TRY THIS AT HOME

Three-Quarters Erect. Directed by John T. Bone; starring Annabel Chong, Keni Downs, Jordan Lee, Skye Blue, Summer Cummings, Ron Jeremy and a Few Human Males. Videocassette: Fantastic Pictures.

Despite the warning of its title, the motivational therapists of HUSTLER Magazine's Erotic Entertainment recommend that every vile sexual atrocity of Don't Try This at Home should be attempted in the seclusion of the private domicile; our only caveat is that the ordinary mook will have a hard time finding fuck-worthy skanks willing to accompany him back to his pad where they will direct their jacked-off G spot streams into a water glass, grimace and grin beneath a pair of scrotums as big cum splotches appear on their faces, lick the floor, have champagne sipped through a straw from their ring-pierced cunts, be pinned to a dart board through the piercing in their tongues, or take three dicks at once, with two in the pussy, with one of those being Ron Jeremy's. Yes, we heartily contend that, wherever possible, all such manner of gonadal grossness should be tried at home, just don't let Ron Jeremy in the house.

—Christian Shapiro

SLUTS 'N' ANGELS IN BUDAPEST

Half Erect. Directed by Patrick Collins; starring Valentina, Jacqueline, Aniku, Christof Clark, Monika, Erika, Kristina, Ildiko, Andrea, Tina, Attila, George Saiber and Szolt. Videocassette: Elegant Angel.

The problem with European porn, even when it's produced by an excellent American director of perversities such as Patrick Collins, is that the old continent's video cocksman simply do not fuck as well as do their U.S. counterparts. Stateside studs put bone to bimbo with a twisted and prolonged thrusting that demolishes the most reticent woman's resolve to remain disaffected under the onslaught of dick. These Hungarian chicks, on the other hand, take the best shots their countrymen can fire and remain totally undefiled. Still, honorary full-load salvos will be set off in salute to brunet Valentina's splendid chest appendages, salubrious, lascivious twinkle eyes and vampy, dick-filled smile. Save a cartridge of malt for Christof Clark's treatment of a lip-smacking blonde: He jacks off with her feet, puts a finger in her poop bud, licks the finger, and gets his dick in there, after which she sucks him and rims him, and he comes in her face. So why does she look like she got away with something?

—C. S.

ANAL PANDEMONIUM

One-Quarter Erect. Directed by Figaroo Schmucker; starring Cumisha Amado, Debette, Shay Thomas, Sake St. Jermaine, Amanda, Kitty Fox, Blake Palmer, Rick Masters, Dick Nasty, James "La Foot," Mark Andrews and Julian St. Jax. Videocassette: Totally Tasteless Video.

It's always a shame when an anal tape goes awry, and the causes are often common: ugly chicks, sub-standard dicks, cheap and cheesy filming. Anal Pandemonium has all these faults and more. The production's pace-wrecking editing is a primary source of dissatisfaction. No fewer than three sloppy, slobby shithole schtups are occurring at any one time during Pandemonium's duration, with camera cutting from one to another at precisely the time when whatever depraved loser in the audience who's lonely enough to get into this shit is about to achieve wood. Another of Anal's insurmountable drawbacks is its draw from the talent pool. Though box copy promises six girls in six scenes, two of the broads have bonerless penises hanging right down there by their assholes, a sobering sight that takes almost all the pandemonium out of Anal.

—C. S.

Pandemonium: Mystery meat, anonymous ass.

Budapest: Hungary for sex.

SORDID STORIES WITH THE PINK STILETTO

Three-Quarters Erect. Directed by John T. Bone; starring Annabel Chong, Kerri Downs, Summer Cummings, Skye Blue, Jordan Lee, M, Bunny Bleu, Joey Silvera, David Hardman, Tom Byron and Ron Jeremy. Videocassette: Fantastic Pictures.

What defines goofy pornography? An adult video that's punctuated by comic-book panels and pop-up word balloons, has a plot regarding a "lesbo laser," and pits Annabel Chong, in a rose-colored rubber suit, against hooded, bald bad guy Ron Jeremy pretty well fits such a description. As goofy as those key elements of Sordid Stories With the Pink Stiletto may be, the video is also nearly as long on filthy, whack-worthy fuck scenes. Joey Silvera and David Hardman, poorly impersonating elected officials, fill Chong's every orifice in a makeshift Oval Office; Skye Blue and Summer Cummings run through their standard lesbian depravity schtick (director Bone, remarkably, keeps it interesting); five puds clad in masks depicting ex-U.S. Presidents defile Chong on an altar; and a four-girl, multi-mook orgy ends the show until, inevitably, "next time." Sordid Stories is worth tuning in.

—S. H.

Stiletto: Chong chomping.

JULI ASHTON: EVERY SCHOOLBOY'S DREAM

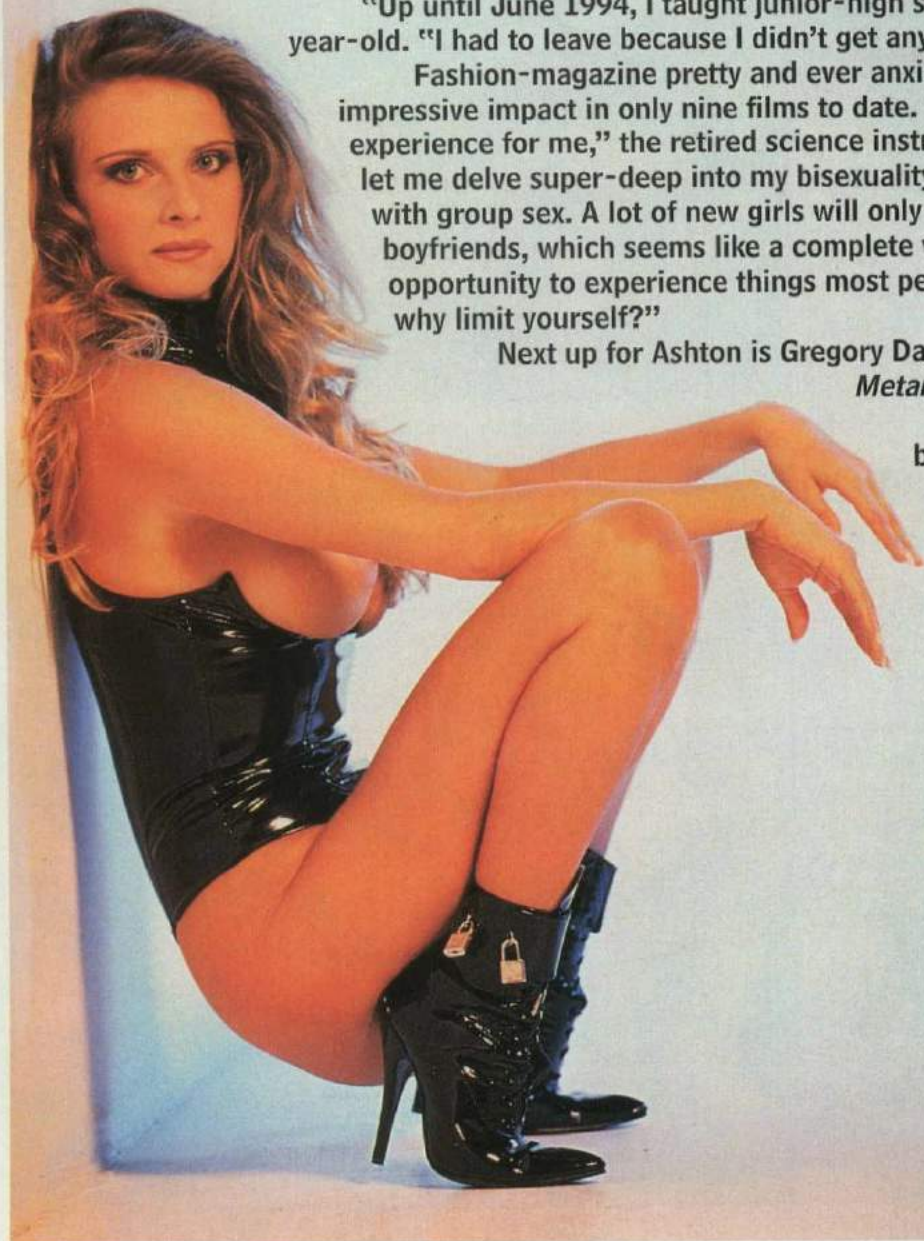

Blond, breathtaking Juli Ashton didn't always swallow cocks and lap cunts for a living.

"Up until June 1994, I taught junior-high school," reveals the bright-eyed 24-year-old. "I had to leave because I didn't get any respect."

Fashion-magazine pretty and ever anxious to fuck, Ashton has made an impressive impact in only nine films to date. "Every movie I do is a total learning experience for me," the retired science instructor explains. "Lipstick Lesbians let me delve super-deep into my bisexuality; Film Buff was my first experience with group sex. A lot of new girls will only do lesbian scenes or fuck their boyfriends, which seems like a complete waste to me; porn offers the opportunity to experience things most people will only ever dream about—why limit yourself?"

Next up for Ashton is Gregory Dark's epic Devil in Miss Jones 5: Metamorphosis.

"I'm looking forward to Devil because I do nine different sex scenes," Ashton attests, "and each one of them is something I've fantasized about. There are anal gang-bangs, a lesbian orgy, and I even get dildos stuck in me by a naked, 350-pound woman. Thank God I left that teaching job!"

BARRIO BABES

One-Quarter Erect. Directed by Stuart Canterbury; starring Alicia Rio, Asia Carrera, Tara Monroe, Rebecca Wild, Micky Lynn and Rhannon. Videocassette: Sin City.

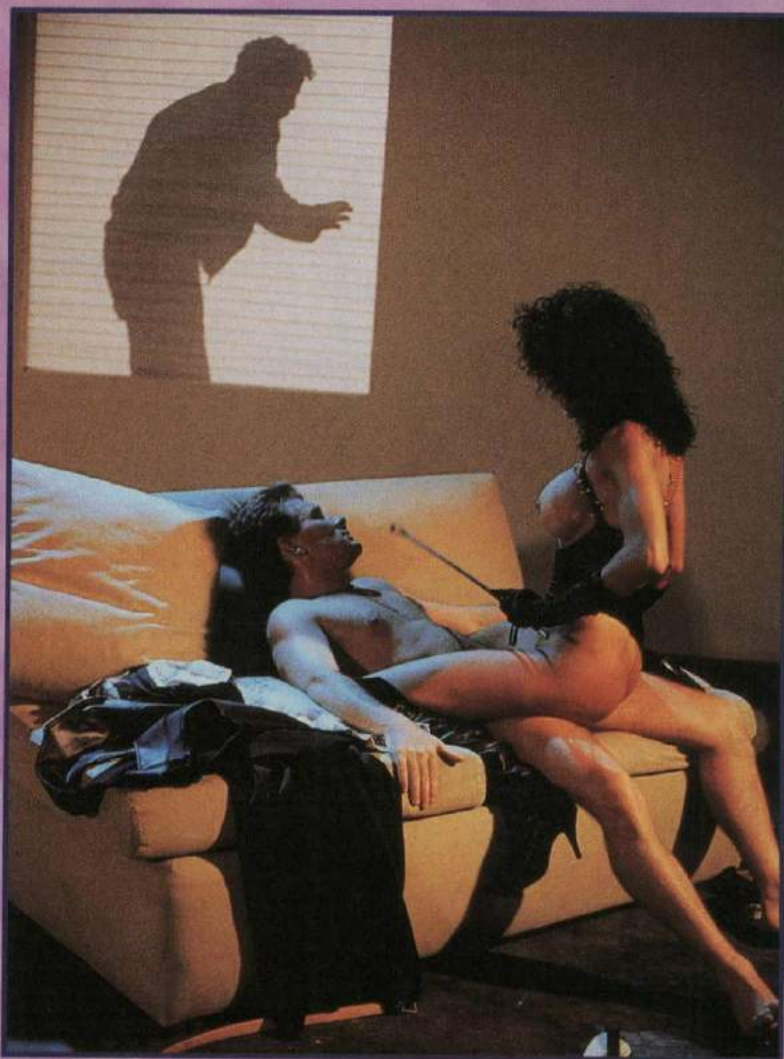

The reality of a wad-effective all-girl porn tape is much less far-fetched than the concept might seem. Bruce Seven has been crafting nut-churning slit-on-slit sex clips for more than a decade; Christ, even Sharon Mitchell got the idea right with her recent slutfest, Junkyard Dykes. Stuart Canterbury, however, has missed the sweet spot with Barrio Babes. Each of Barrio's five or so chick-chews-chick scenes is less distinguishable than the scene preceding it. All are two-girl couplings: no orgies of ovary owners, no pair of pussies ganging up to clit-pummel a third, no whacked out, freaky, sizzling, slick-and-greasy hot-sex shit. The girls themselves are all pretty good, most of them qualify as babes, but none is both new and beautiful enough to overcome the same-old lameness of sex in this Barrio. —C. S.

OPEN LIPS

Half Erect. Directed by Robert McCallum; starring Anna Malle, Valeria, Lilli Xene, Destini DeMoore, Natasia, Sydney Dance, Kyle Stone, T. T. Boy, David Hardman, Steve Drake, Cal Jammer, Vince Vouyer and Michael J. Cox. Videocassette: Western Visuals.

There's nothing actually wrong with the seven strung-together, one-on-one sex scenes in Open Lips, but there's nothing memorable about them either. A bunch of porn stars couple up to fuck, and that's it. The few standout factors include Anna Malle's agreeably prurient presence, Sydney Dance's meat-packed mams, the cock-swallowing talents of ever-tasty Valeria, and the cum-cascade delivered by Steve Drake across Lilli Xene's pumped-up happy-pillows. The only problem with Open Lips is that, after a quick look, precious little is found inside. —S. H.

Malle closes her low Lips around Stone's fuckstick.

TAKIN' IT TO THE LIMIT 3

Three-Quarters Erect. Directed by Bionca; starring Danyel Cheeks, Careena Collins, Tiffany Million, Melissa Monet, Davia Arnell, Sean Michaels, Nick East, Mr. Marcus, Julian St. Jox, Vince Vouyer and Jerry Styles. Videocassette: Bruce Seven Productions.

Bruce Seven, fuck-filmdom's filthiest old bastard, has found in Bionca—his wife, sometime porn performer and the credited director of the Takin' It to the Limit series—the ideal partner for carnal creativity. This third installment in their flagship video line suffers compared to its predecessors only in that its starlets are slightly less sumptuous. Nonetheless, Bionca and Seven successfully prompt erotic abandon from every participant. Slinky Careena Collins is tossed in a cage and freed only to be anally ravaged by a trio of black cock-wielders; Danyel Cheeks strips sexy spongecake Davia Arnell for a lesbian couch-tussle, which is interrupted when savory, natural-sacked dominatrix Melissa Monet leads in slobbering slave Jerry Styles for dildo violation; Nick East and Vince Vouyer butt-nail both Danyel and Davia in Seven's rec room; and a blindfolded Tiffany Million is made the orgasmic focal point of a mixed-gender gang-bang. After three top-flight editions of expertly executed, profoundly seamy sex-excursions, there's no Limit to the ongoing quality of this excellent series. —S. H.

Limit 3: Million in a blindwoman's boff.

BECOMING Legends

Desiree Costeau and Skeeve.

Veronica Hart atop Candida Royalle.

Erica Boyer.

For the pornophile with an eye on the past and a palm wrapped around his johnson, VCA's True Legends of Adult Cinema series offers the best possible historical perspective. Seven tapes compile classic sex scenes from the early '70s to the present, celebrating an array of XXX performers ranging from household names to the erotically unsung.

Volume One, The Golden Age, features lascivious legends such as Annette Haven and Georgina Spelvin; Cult Superstars showcases the prime of Desiree Cousteau and Barbara Dare. The line's latest installment, The Modern Era, offers the likes of Tori Welles and Selena Steele at their most salaciously torrid. Each tape is full of rarities, and shows who was doing what to whom during whatever particular epoch in sleaze history. Adult-film maker Jim Holliday's commentary is both worthily informative and remarkably unintrusive.

Look for the reasonably priced True Legends of Adult Cinema at local video outlets.

CREME DE LA FACE 2

Half Erect. Directed by Rodney Moore; starring Sydney Dance, Sonoma, Crystal Clear, Greta Carlson, Kilian, Chante, Teddi Austin, Brea, Pearl, Karla, Dela Cucchi and Rodney Moore. Videocassette: Odyssey Group Video.

Rodney Moore is a regular Joe Skeeve who has jumped onto the hand-held video-mack bandwagon as originated by archetypal voyeur-participants such as John Stagliano's Buttman and the dirty defiler of debutantes, Ed Powers. Rodney Moore is newsworthy on one account: His cock doesn't so much ejaculate a glistening, slick fluid as it vomits chunky, viscous, thick-as-porridge, blotting blobs of gruesome testicle discharge. This pus de la penis is liberally applied to the mugs of a shitload of bitches. Rodney likes to stick his tongue up the bungholes of the girls he lures into the range of his viewfinder. Many of these specimens are ethnic holes, and most have at least one physical flaw that would need to be overlooked in order to successfully put the meat to her. Rodney does three at once; their combined flaws would limp the dick of a lesser perv, such as the moderate stroker for whom Creme de la Face will be inappropriate fodder. —C. S.

Creme: Sydney's snack is on the way.

SEYMORE AND SHANE DO IRELAND

Most Jewish boys are presented with fountain pens the day they become men; Seymore Butts, apparently, got a load of recording equipment and amiable nymphomaniac Shane to do with what he wished. Fortunately, he chose to fuck Shane on camera, and then send her out for fresh sex-pastries whom they could fuck together. Viewers' enjoyment of the Seymore and Shane line depends largely upon how much they can stomach obnoxious, mouth-breathing Butts and his sub-par videography (the bulk of his footage centers on his expertly circumcised penis). Do Ireland indulges Butts's most boring instincts though, as usual, Shane's enthusiasm elevates the proceedings to a level of enjoyable mediocrity. Always astonishing Vanessa Chase blows Butts to creamy climax; Kylie Ireland joins loins with the couple first in a limo and then, blindfolded, in a hammock; and a mess of attractive, professional holes-and-poles make orgy-like in Seymore's living room. Viewers considering whether to shell out for Seymore and Shane Do Ireland should be warned: They'll only be encouraging overprivileged creep Butts to continue cranking out so-so porn product. —S. H.

BUTTMAN'S WET DREAM

Three-Quarters Erect. Directed by John Stagliano; starring Krysti Lynn, Heather St. Claire, Anna Malle, the London Mystery Girls, Steven St. Croix, Tom Byron, Alex Sanders, Jay Ashley, Joey Silvera and Valentino. Videocassette: VCA.

Even in a relatively tossed-off project, John Stagliano excels. Buttman's Wet Dream might alternately (and truthfully) be titled Buttman's Quick Buck, as a few slap-dash sex scenes have been assembled around footage shot in England that didn't quite fit into Buttman's two superlative British Adventures. Who cares? Enchanted hand-humpers will pump with that familiar Buttman-inspired ferocity. The tape opens with Heather St. Claire and Anna Malle sashaying down Stagliano's way to have Alex Sanders and Tom Byron sphincter-bang them silly, and it closes with an almost clinically nasty ass-nailing doled out to the increasingly cherubic Krysti Lynn by swarthy stud-pony Valentino. The middle segment, featuring the London Mystery Girls, puts the bangers of Stagliano and Joey Silvera to the exquisite mashes of a pair of silent, sumptuous Brit ginches, and ranks with Buttman's most ball-searing endeavors. Overall, Wet Dream is one of the weaker installments in the series, but even Buttman's flimsiest efforts guarantee solid, erectile viewing pleasure.

A Picture's Worth a Thousand Whines

After enjoying your magazine for many years, I began subscribing with the Holiday '94 issue. Everything is great with one major exception: the pictorials! What happened? Every issue I have ever seen has tented my jeans, but the past three issues have been disappointing. Those phone-sex ads are more explicit than your pictorials. Has Mr. Flynt keeled over or what?

—T. C.

Ione, California

Mr. Flynt is not only alive and well, but he's featuring the most explicit and erotic pictorials of HUSTLER's 20-year history. HUSTLER was the first mainstream adult publication to show cum-shots in our boy/girl sets, beginning in the November '94 issue, and the pictorials will get even hotter as we enter our 21st year. Better get your tent a new set of poles.

All's Fair in Love and Advertising, Part One

I have been an avid masturbator to the women of HUSTLER since I reached puberty. Last year when I went to jail, I ordered a subscription so I could still see my favorite women in HUSTLER. To my disappointment, I have been receiving a fraud. All my magazines seem to be more like a 1-900 catalogue than a fuck book. The pictorials are getting shorter, and the 1-900 ads longer. Please, I beg of you: more shots, less ads!

—K. W.

Westwood, New Jersey

The truth is, the more advertising pages we sell, the more editorial pages we're able to print. The advertising success HUSTLER enjoys today means more pictorials and more pages of humor and satire than ever before.

All's Fair, Part Two

I ordered a product called "Mr. Bigg" from an ad in the back of HUSTLER Magazine in 1988 and have yet to receive it. If I do not receive my money back or this product within 60 days of the date this letter is mailed, I will seek a suit against your magazine for false advertising.

—S. M.

Indiana Department of Corrections
Greencastle, Indiana

We passed your letter on to our advertising department, S. M., who called the makers of Mr. Bigg. The manufacturer claims it is not allowed to send anything other than written materials to incarcerated people. Thus, when prisoners order a product, the company's policy is to send back the check within six to eight weeks, with a letter explaining the law. If you did not receive this response, check with your correctional institution's mail department. HUSTLER urges readers who do not receive an ordered product within eight weeks to act immediately. After seven years, tracking down a complaint becomes nearly impossible.

Gone, but Not Forgotten

I could write for a day and well into the night about Miss Shannon Wilsey, known to the adult-entertainment world as Savannah.

There are people who knew Shannon better than I did, but many of us miss her deeply. In our hearts, we understand that Shannon was a human being. We know, like all life, Shannon was a gift from God. Let us not judge what Shannon may encounter now, but pray that she is back home.

—C. V.

Minneapolis, Minnesota

Do you have a comment or complaint? We want to hear it. Send your letters (typed or neatly handwritten) to HUSTLER Feedback, 9171 Wilshire Boulevard, Suite 300, Beverly Hills, CA 90210. Include a phone number if you want your letter considered for publication.

FLY ME TO THE POON

As a salesman for a large corporation, I travel constantly. For me, flying is no more exciting than taking a bus—with the exception of one recent, unusual flight.

I was late for the red-eye from Philly to San Francisco, and was dismayed to see a long line of people waiting to go through the metal detector. I stamped my feet and sighed dramatically along with the others until I saw the cause of the logjam: A vision of Far Eastern loveliness in a skirt shorter than Heather Locklear's on Melrose Place had emptied her bag and all her pockets, and still kept setting off the detector. The poor thing was turning a lovely pink from embarrassment and frustration. My heart and rapidly expanding cock went out to the girl. Finally, she slapped her forehead, as if the answer had just dawned on her. As everyone stared in astonishment, she stuck a hand under her skirt and squatted as if she were about to take a dump right there on the floor. Elegantly plopping two little steel balls on the conveyor belt, she swished through the detector and out of my life.

She's probably going to L.A., I thought as I forlornly boarded my plane. I couldn't get the picture of her flushed face and pushpin nipples, erect with excitement, out of my head. Luckily, my tray hid the bulge in my pants when the stewardess served me my drink. As soon as she was gone, I headed for the bathroom to quickly whack off, covering my crotch with an issue of Elle—which would serve me once I was in the restroom as well.

The slot on the first door read Unoccupied. I pushed it open, and there stood the Ben-wa ball girl, completely naked, bent over to examine her shaved pussy for ingrown hairs. Before I could stammer out an apology, she yanked me into the tiny room, shut the door and slid the Occupied sign in place.

"Thank God!" she declared. "I've been waiting 20 minutes for someone to use this toilet."

She clamped a hand over my mouth when I tried to speak.

"We have to be very quiet," she whispered, unzipping my fly with her free hand. She sat on the bowl, pulling my pants down with her. Out sprang my stiff cock, which she immediately devoured whole. Snorting furiously, she slammed her head down on my rod again and again, as if she were trying to bust a hole right through the roof of her mouth. Her hands flew everywhere, massaging my hips and thighs and kneading my swollen ball sac and strained butt cheeks.

So this is the Mile High Club, I thought. Why didn't I join sooner? I gritted my teeth to keep from groaning with pleasure as the girl sucked relentlessly on my prick.

The plane hit an air pocket, and I fell forward, moaning loudly when my prick hit the back of her throat. As the girl sat choking, tears welling up in her eyes, the steward knocked on the door and asked if I was all right.

"Tell him you're airsick," coughed the girl, seeing my panic-stricken expression.

I moaned emphatically. "I, uh, have diarrhea."

"Sorry about that, sir."

"Diarrhea!" snickered the girl after he left. "I'd better plug it up." She hooked a saliva-slickened finger in my asshole and speared her head on my tool once again.

That did it. My balls gave a portentous rumble. But no way was I going to come without sampling that bare pussy. I snatched my cock from the girl's ravenous jaws before it could blast off. Unfazed, the girl skillfully hopped onto the sink and, wrapping her limber legs around my neck, pulled my mouth down to her twat. I rubbed my cheek along her clean-shaven pussy mound, marveling at its baby softness, but she drew me in closer, mashing her slit against my mouth. Slipping my tongue in, I fucked her yawning hole until her juices plastered my face.

I was lost in the heady perfume of her velvet cunt when I heard a loud banging on the door.

"Hey, what did you do, fall in?" An impatient passenger was spoiling the party.

Thinking quickly, I made diarrhea farting noises with my mouth. The knocking stopped.

"Fuck me now, before we're interrupted again," demanded the girl, releasing me from her legs and pushing me back onto the toilet. She gracefully alighted from her perch and eased her lithe body onto my throbbing prick, facing me. Her narrow little cunt fit my dick like a rubber glove. As she slid up and down, she drew in her muff muscles, squeezing my rod even tighter, until I thought the head would burst open, flooding her insides with bubbling crude.

Gradually the girl picked up speed, frantically hopping up and down and humping her clit against the base of my cock. Finally, she rose on my pole, keeping only the head in, planted her feet firmly on the floor and dropped her body down with a bang, until my dick was clogging her windpipe. Her head snapped back, and she writhed on my pulsing prick like a stuck pig, humming

Urban myths are outlandishly implausible scenarios that pass from one generation to another with such consistency that, in time, they become accepted as fact. Kids who eat a certain type of volatile candy too fast experience mind meltdown; rats are supposedly found in buckets of fast-food chicken; masturbation leaves a person blind with hairy palms—such are the fables that masquerade as fact. The world of sexuality is burdened with a set of similar legends that persist despite intelligent life on this planet. Explore the world of lust and lies as we open...

Mrs. Tate burrowed her tongue far into my twat, swirling it around my pussy walls as though she were trying to reach the last bit of ice cream in the bottom of a cone.

steadily through her tightly closed lips.

This babydoll deserved a treat—one I reserve for only my most special girlfriends, because it requires a lot of strength. I was near the end, but I pride myself on my endurance. Digging my fingers into her smooth ass cheeks, I stood up quickly, carrying the girl with me.

"Hey, what are you doing?" she exclaimed, squirming on my cock. "You've got to be careful!"

Her head bashed into the low ceiling, and she was knocked out. The weight of her unconscious body falling knocked me into the door, forcing it open, and we toppled into the aisle, where a frightened stewardess dropped a Salisbury steak dinner on my head.

I'm writing this from my cell, holding one ice pack on my skull and another on my sore dick, but I don't regret a single second. In fact, now I have a better use for all those frequent flyer miles. —F. Y.

LADIES WHO LUNCH

My husband and I recently abandoned our poor but happy life in New York City because he got a job as an art director at a big ad agency here in Los Angeles. I studied commercial art too; so I understood why he would uproot me from the only home I've ever known to take advantage of a potentially golden opportunity. But it took every penny we had to move out here, and I didn't have any job lined up.

After we'd been here a few weeks, Darrin's boss invited us out to dinner at a trendy, no-lard Mexican restaurant in Brentwood. I love free meals, but I have nothing to say to people who are 25 years older than I am, especially squares like Mr. Tate and his wife. While we waited for our food, I fought unsuccessfully to stifle my yawns.

I perked up considerably when I felt a foot between my legs. That dog, I thought as I automatically glanced over at the shiny-pated, unnaturally tan Mr. Tate. But he was too far away—that couldn't be his big toe working its way between my pussy lips. Incredulous, I looked across the booth at Mrs. Tate and detected a thin smile on her hatchet face. This was too weird.

My panties grew hot and tight as Mrs. Tate tickled my clit through the thin material, meanwhile calmly discussing smog levels with Darrin. I squeezed her foot between my thighs to make her stop, but she just pressed harder on my button. My body flushed purple up to my face, for all to see. I steadily shoveled organic, blue-corn chips and salsa into my mouth as a distraction, but just as the main course arrived, Mrs. Tate plugged her entire big toe into my cunt, stuffing my hole with wet nylon.

"Uhhh!" My fingers flew to my lips.

"What the hell is wrong with you?" Darrin demanded.

"Perhaps her fish taco is too hot," Mrs. Tate interjected politely.

I nodded feebly. "Yes, that's it."

I sat in a cold, slimy puddle for the rest of the meal, pinned down by Mrs. Tate's foot resting possessively on my snatch. As we parted outside the restaurant, the old bat took my hand, scraping a sharp, lacquered nail along my palm, and invited me to a ladies' club luncheon at her home the next day. I was about to offer a lame excuse, but a glare from Darrin signaled that I had better say yes.

"While you were busy licking your boss's butt, his dried-up lezzie bitch of a wife was mining my pussy under the table with her toe," I whined once we were safely in our crummy one-bedroom in the Valley. "If I go to her house, she'll probably stick her whole head up there."

"Don't be such a baby," Darrin complained. "There'll be lots of other wrinkly old ladies around to protect you. You'd better not make me lose this job, or I'll be frying chicken at Popeye's. And you'll be working the drive-through."

When I arrived at her Beverly Hills estate the next afternoon, naturally no one was there but Mrs. Tate. She patted the spot next to her on the couch.

"I can't believe you're 23," she clucked, shaking her head as I took my seat. "You don't look old enough to vote."

Mrs. Tate leaned in close enough for me to smell the three inches of foundation coating her face and kissed my cheek. I scrunched up my shoulders and turned my head. I had never even kissed a girl at camp when all the other scouts were knocking boobies under their sleeping bags and practicing how to French.

"My dear," she smiled icily, "your husband is a talented artist, but he's not indispensable."

My stomach flip-flopped as Mrs. Tate took my chin in her ringed fingers and pulled my mouth to hers. She cheated me out of lunch, I thought; so I'm going to treat her to my breakfast.

But to my astonishment, when her tongue touched mine, I felt an unmistakable tingle in my cunt, and I forgot all about my stomach. Mrs. Tate was arousing me! The thought was terrifying, but I didn't resist when the old lady unbuttoned

I thrust my bottom up to meet his prick, turned back to Mrs. Tate's pussy and fucked her juicy hole with my tongue, matching the jackhammer strokes of the old man's fat cock in my own dripping gash.

my blouse and slid her hand under my bra. She stopped kissing me and grinned when she came to a rigid nipple.

"It's chilly in here," I said defensively.

Still smiling, Mrs. Tate silently got on the floor, kicking the coffee table back to make room, and pulled my skirt and stockings down around my ankles. My heart pounded as she caressed the insides of my thighs. When her fingers brushed against my pussy, I squirmed and tried to close my legs, caught between repulsion and the desire for her to jam any implement she had, living or non-, into my quivering hole. Mrs. Tate held my legs apart at the knees and brought her mouth to my cunt, gently nuzzling the downy fur and covering the goeey, pink center with baby kisses. Her warm breath against my clit made me crazy. Without thinking, I grabbed a fistful of her brittle hair so she couldn't take her mouth away.

Spurred on by this breakthrough, Mrs. Tate burrowed her tongue far into my twat, swirling it around my pussy walls as though she were trying to reach the last bit of ice cream in the bottom of a cone. The deeper she dug, the harder her nose pressed against my swollen clit. All of the blood in my body streamed toward the hot spot below my belly, where it came to a rolling boil and overflowed. Hearing my startled yelp, Mrs. Tate withdrew her tongue and gave my sticky bush one last kiss.

"It's no different than with a man, is it?" she prodded, gently stroking my stomach and breasts.

"No," I conceded, shutting my eyes in blissful exhaustion. I was vaguely aware of her rising.

"Now it's my turn to come."

When I opened my eyes, Mrs. Tate was stark naked, lying on the opposite end of the couch. My belly lurched again. It was one thing to receive from a woman; giving was a different kettle of fish entirely. But fair's fair.

Swallowing to moisten my parched throat, I crawled between the old lady's spread legs and tentatively brought my face close to her muff.

This is what Darrin sees? I thought as I parted her lips and peered in at the fleshy inner flaps framing her glistening hole. No wonder he only eats me when he's wasted.

I gave Mrs. Tate's gash a few feeble licks. Hmmm. It didn't taste fishy at all—more like raw red meat. I giggled into her twat.

"What's so funny?" asked Mrs. Tate, annoyed.

"I like it," I replied, diving into her snatch. As I smothered my face between her slick pussy lips, savoring the tangy scent, I felt a long, hard object being driven into my cunt. I turned to see Mr. Tate pumping away. Nothing surprised me anymore. I thrust my bottom up to meet his prick, turned back to Mrs. Tate's pussy and fucked her juicy hole with my tongue, matching the jackhammer strokes of the old man's fat cock in my own dripping gash. My brain exploded simultaneously with Mr. Tate's dick, which sprayed a sheet of jizz all over my ass; within seconds Mrs. Tate dribbled her own mess into my mouth. The three of us collapsed in a tangle of sweaty limbs.

I moved into the Tates' luxurious guest house that night, and poor Darrin ended up losing his job after all—to me! I'll take extra-crispy, honey.

And the Glands Played On

Senior Citizens With AIDS

by Don Vaughan

"I'm going to date up every single gal in town," crowed Harry W. when he and his wife, Phyllis, finally and painfully separated.

But the paunchy, slightly balding meterman was as unadventurous at the age of 54 as he had been at 20, when he'd married his childhood sweetheart and only sex partner. Rather than playing the field, he immediately hooked up with Frances, a soft-spoken, 48-year-old divorcee he'd met at the local supermarket. Harry and Frances's affair was quiet and comfortable, and the sex pleasant. Harry never wore a condom, and Frances never suggested that he wear one. She was past the age where she could get knocked up.

Four years later, after the couple parted amicably, the single Harry again had every intention of sowing some belated wild oats—until he met a wonderful, 53-year-old widow named Judy and fell passionately in love. I've still got it! Harry often thought during their frequent bouts of youthfully exuberant sex. The subject of condoms was never broached—rubbers were for young people who slept around.

Harry, grateful to be given a chance at happiness late in life, popped the question a few months after meeting Judy. As they planned the wedding, Judy remarked that her groom-to-be was going to look very handsome and trim in his old tuxedo after losing all that weight. "And I lost it without even trying," bragged Harry.

But when Harry lost another ten pounds in less than two months, he became concerned and went to the doctor, who told him there was nothing wrong. After shedding another five pounds and suffering from frequent diarrhea attacks, Harry again visited the M.D. Tests for cancer came up negative.

"The body gradually breaks down as you get older, Harry," assured the doctor. "You're just nervous about the wedding, and you're not eating properly."

Harry agreed. What else could it be? Two days before his nuptials, the 5-11 Harry, now down to 123 pounds, collapsed and was brought to the emergency room. A blood test revealed that he was HIV-positive.

Now, just a year later, Harry has full-blown AIDS. He's been hospitalized twice for pneumonia, a disease to which AIDS patients are particularly susceptible, and he loses more sight in his left eye each day.

"I don't understand," lamented Harry when his illness was diagnosed. "I'm not gay; I never took a drug stronger than aspirin; and I never got a blood transfusion. And I've slept with only three women in my life!"

Judy has stood by Harry—although they no longer have sex, because "condoms can break." So far, she tests negative, as does his ex-wife. Harry doesn't know where Frances is now, but he thinks about her constantly, and about the reason she gave for divorcing her husband: "He was always cheating on me—and I'm sure he didn't limit himself to women."

Harry W. is a member of a small but growing population of people with AIDS who have only recently received widespread attention from researchers and educators: Americans 50 years of age and older.

Many people—doctors included—don't think of older people as being sexually active, much less contracting a fatal disease such as AIDS. But statistics show otherwise:

- In September 1993, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reported that more than 34,000 Americans 50 years and older had full-blown AIDS—nearly 10% of the national AIDS population. Another 100,000 seniors are believed to be infected with HIV, but haven't developed symptoms.

- Americans over the age of 50 who are at risk for HIV are only one-sixth as likely to use condoms during sex and one-fifth as likely to get tested for HIV, compared to a group of at-risk individuals in their 20s, according to a study in the American Medical Association's Archives of Internal Medicine.

- Some of the highest concentrations of older people with AIDS can be found in popular retirement areas such as South Florida and Arizona. As a result, says the Miami Herald, South Florida residents over 50 have a much higher percentage of infection on average than the same population nationwide: 15% compared to 10%.

"It's an invisible epidemic. What we're seeing now is just the tip of the iceberg," declares Judy Fink, Senior Program Specialist with Social Outreach and Support at the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) in Washington, D.C.

Older people contract HIV the same way that younger people do: primarily through unprotected sex.

While male homosexual sex is a leading cause of AIDS among people 65 and older, accounting for about 36% of the new cases from this group in 1992, the number of older people contracting HIV through heterosexual relations is on the rise. Nine percent of AIDS cases reported among people 60 and older in the United States can be attributed to heterosexual encounters, compared to just 2% of all U.S. AIDS cases, according to Dr. Jonathan Ship, a former investigator for the National Institutes of Health. In 1992 alone, heterosexual sex accounted for 15% of new AIDS cases among subjects 65 and older.

The risk for heterosexual seniors increases with divorce or the loss of a spouse. Most older people currently on the dating scene were monogamous in marriage and practice what's known as serial monogamy in their new social lives; that is, they have multiple partners in short-term sequential relationships as opposed to having many partners at the same time. They usually don't consider themselves at risk for AIDS because they don't see themselves as promiscuous. But even serial monogamy can be dangerous.

"Unless they're using condoms and protecting themselves, they're sleeping with everyone their partner has ever slept with," states Judy Fink. "Many older people don't understand that. They think they're safe, and they're not. If a person is going to be sexually active with anyone but a lifetime monogamous partner, then condoms are an absolute necessity."

Older women are at particular risk of HIV infection because of certain changes that occur naturally in their bodies. During menopause, when estrogen and other hormones cease production, the vaginal wall becomes thinner and more likely to tear. A natural weakening of the immune system can also increase a woman's vulnerability to HIV.

A diagnosis of AIDS can be difficult in older Americans because the disease often mimics other ailments common to seniors. The problem is compounded by doctors who automatically discount AIDS simply because of a patient's age. For example, a doctor might assume that sudden weight loss equals cancer of some kind, or that dementia indicates Alzheimer's disease. Yet these are also symptoms of AIDS. Often, by the time the real diagnosis is made, it's too late for AIDS treatment to do any good.

But it costs money to educate doctors on how to tell AIDS symptoms from other age-related conditions, and funding has been limited. In the Institute on Aging's $400-million budget for 1994, only $750,000 went toward AIDS and aging, and only part of that was used to educate doctors.

Even with treatment, age makes fighting AIDS harder: An aging body doesn't tolerate aggressive therapies as well as a young one does. Older people often can't metabolize AIDS-fighting medicines such as AZT; so drug levels build up in their bodies, causing adverse reactions. In addition, side effects such as anemia and nausea are often magnified to the point where the patient simply can't take the drugs anymore.

The situation becomes more complicated for older people who are already taking other medications for existing conditions: These drugs can dramatically affect AIDS treatment. Asthma medications, for example, are known to interfere with the antibiotics needed to ward off opportunistic infections, and blood thinners—common among seniors who have had heart surgery—can inhibit the effectiveness of AZT.

The end result is that older people with HIV tend to develop full-blown AIDS faster than younger people do, and they also die faster, say epidemiologists with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention—although some analysts maintain that older patients only appear to die faster, because diagnosis isn't timely.

A lack of preventive education is considered a big factor in the spread of AIDS in the senior population. The vast majority of educational advertising has been aimed at younger men and women, leaving older people to assume that they're not at risk, and therefore don't need to practice safe sex or get tested for HIV.

"They mistakenly believe that AIDS just does not happen to their generation," notes Ellen L. Stover, director of the Office on AIDS at the National Institute of Mental Health.

But funding for preventive education has been limited. Even though seniors with AIDS make up nearly 10% of the total AIDS population, only 1% of the National Institutes of Health's $1.3-billion AIDS budget—or only $1.6 million—goes to the National Institute on Aging to educate the elderly. Many grassroots efforts, such as the AIDS and Aging Task Force for Dade and Monroe County, in Florida, are having an even more difficult time getting cash for their education efforts.

"We're having trouble getting funding because some foundations don't consider the elderly at risk," notes AIDS and Aging Task Force chairman Vincent Delgado. "They say, 'No matter what, they're going to die.' And that's not right."

Despite the lack of funds, educational efforts are gaining momentum in areas with a high elderly population.

The AIDS and Aging Task Force is visiting senior centers in Dade County to discuss AIDS prevention and to distribute condoms to those who want them. The talks are the first exposure many seniors have had to the AIDS crisis, and they're using the forums to ask important questions. "Men ask if they can get AIDS from oral sex," notes Delgado. "Women wonder why they need condoms, because they associate them with birth control."

A few miles north, in Fort Lauderdale, AIDS support groups are seeing an increase in older people with the disease, while in Delray Beach, Social Security employees recently heard a pre-

In its current incarnation, The New Yorker appeals to wealthy snobs and pansy East Coast art-intellectuals, ignoring the hard-working men of America's heartland who built up this country so martini-slopping faggots in three-piece suits could knock it down. Thus, we'd toss this pig in a poke and toast to mud in its eye.

Are you an accomplice to murder?

Have you ever been multiply convicted on violent and/or sexual assault charges?

How many cops have you shot?

Would the suicide of your spouse function, for you, as a brilliant career move?

Do you embody all the attributes of an untouchable, outcast scourge of humanity?

Don't worry—

MTV's Kurt Loder Will Kiss Your Ass!

Smug, pandering MTV News anchorman Kurt Loder loves to kiss butt.

The more shit a given butt is mired in, the quicker Kurt is to pucker and fawn.

In the past, reprehensible behaviors such as those described above would land their perpetrators status as social pariahs or, in some cases, lifelong sentences in prison.

In our modern era, infamy of this nature often lands the offenders on the crinkled lips of pompous dullard Kurt Loder. Consider the testimony of those who have received Loder's tongue-to-tochas treatment:

SNOOP DOGGY DOGG, rapper; charged with assisting in a fatal drive-by shooting.

"Back in the day, an asshole whitey like Kurt Loder might have thrown a rope around Snoop Dogg's neck, but now he be neckin' with my asshole!"

BILLY IDOL, rock pin-up-turned-computer-geek; reckless driver.

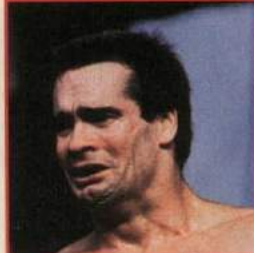

"Thanks to cyberpunk, me ol' mate Kurt can mouth me bum from 3,000 miles away, even when I'm laid up in detox or in the clink—and he does!"

LISA "LEFT EYE" LOPES, songstress with the group TLC; arsonist.

"When Kurt Loder be lip-pin' my butt, he say shit like, 'Left Eye, you a real torch singer.' Kurt Loder be funny."

HENRY ROLLINS, heavy metal musclehead; guilty of sucking.

"Pain! Rage! Agony! Ooh—lick me again, right there, Kurt: It tickles!"

MARK DAVID CHAPMAN, worst-case-scenario fanboy.

"Even though I was only responsible for John Lennon's last hit—the pavement—Kurt tried to smuggle his lips past corrections officials to suck my shitter. Imagine!"

Contest parody. Not to be taken seriously. All quotes are fictitious.

Hey, Kurt Loder: Kiss My Ass!

I'm an obnoxious, uncontrollable prick with no musical ability—just like MTV's brightest stars—and I'd appreciate a pooper-pecking as much as any million-selling menace to the public. Here are the laws and/or societal mores I'll violate to qualify for a sphincter-smooch:

Call me as soon as I make bail, Kurt! Put your lip balm to my bunghole, and let's party!

Confessions of a GIGOLO

He Loves the Ladies, and They Pay

The stud-for-hire works hard for his money.

The life isn't always so easy and plush as it's cracked up to be. Still, any man who is paid by women to give sex must have some secrets that he should share with the rest of us.

Full Disclosure by Mark Heartbox

Illustration by Mary Fleener

Gigolo

"She was naked and on me, snapping my buttons to rip away my clothes. My jeans weren't even all the way off my ass, and she was scarfing my cock. She must have been starved."

Mark Heartbox, a white male in his late 20s, doesn't want his real name used. "I don't mind the notoriety," he insists, "but some of the ladies have a hard time accepting what's what." What's what is that women, a surprising quantity of them, pay to receive the amorous attentions of Mark Heartbox. Not all of these women are desperate and beastly.

Heartbox is conspicuous in any setting. At the skeezy Beverly Hills nightclub that he refers to as his "office and second home," Heartbox stands out from the pampered fancy men elbowing for an open space in the backbar mirror.

Mark smiles the insolent smile of a guy who's been too lucky for too long, but somehow his arrogance is endearing. Heartbox's great gift is that people like him. Some of his clients, and their husbands, however, might like him a little less if they knew he'd provided the following descriptions of life as a man who gets paid to give women sex.

Mark Makes No Excuses: "I talk to my mother about once a week. She isn't doing too well healthwise; so it's nice to keep in touch. She knows that I go out with women for a living, and she's always after me to go back to school, or go into business with my brother and my uncles. My father was a bright, handsome guy, but he never amounted to anything. Boozer. Gambler. Mom has an idea that I'm somehow shiftless, like him. She doesn't understand that just because I'm not motivated to live her straight life doesn't mean I'm not motivated. Ambition is relative. A lazy person could not achieve my success.

"What I do is constructive. My objective when I go on a call is to make the woman happy. Whoever she is, whether she's sad and angry, or bored or horny or in need of some affection, by the time I'm done with my shift, she feels better about herself than she did before I reported for the job. My duty is to make the client believe that she is attractive, valued and worthy of good things. All people—and women are no exception—need a regular dose of enthusiasm, or they get sick. I'm like a fucking hands-on, holistic cure for cancer."

Mark's On-the-Job Training:

"When I was 19, I moved to Manhattan to be an artist and got a job as a doorman at a downtown after-hours club. I met a lot of nightlife people that way, and most of them wanted to be my friend. This one really cool model chick had been dropped by her agency because she simply could not stop eating and got too fat for Vogue. She was slightly plump, but still thin enough to freelance as a callgirl. She and I established a rapport, and we fucked occasionally. One afternoon she got this call from a dentist and his wife out in Long Island. They wanted her, and they wanted a guy also, strictly for the wife. It was a rush thing, and my friend couldn't get hold of any regular pro guys; so she stopped by my place and asked if I wanted to take a drive. She explained the setup in the car.

"We get there, and it's this big, gaudy house with paintings all over the place that look like geometry problems and big chromium blobs that are supposed to be sculptures. The dentist is sitting on three-inch shag carpet, leaning on a glass-top coffee table with about half an ounce of coke lined up. He's going bald and frazzled, on his way over the hill. The wife is in better shape, not 30 years old yet, but she's not looking happy about the situation.

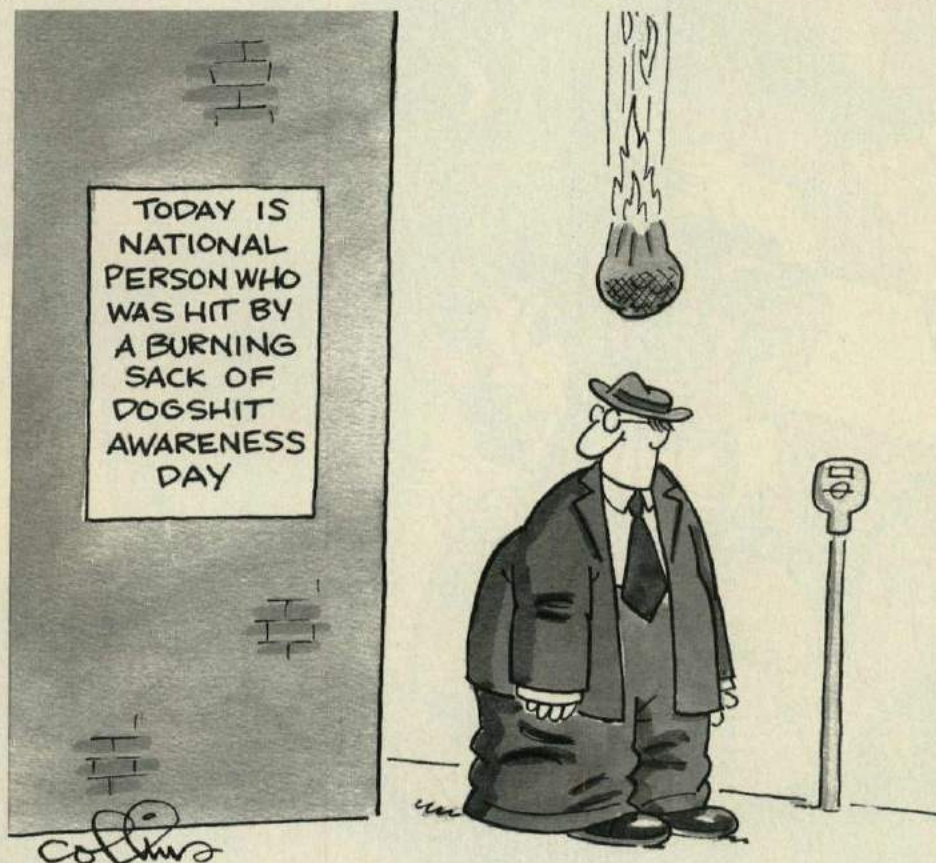

"My friend, Cindra, takes charge, introducing us and getting the money. She plops down next to the dentist and puts her hand into his robe. I'm some fucking hick standing there. The wife is staring at me like I'm a kid paperboy she doesn't want to pay. The dentist cuts off rails of coke all around, then suggests that me and the wife go into one of the bedrooms while he and Cindra do their deed out by the coke. The wife gets up and leads me away.

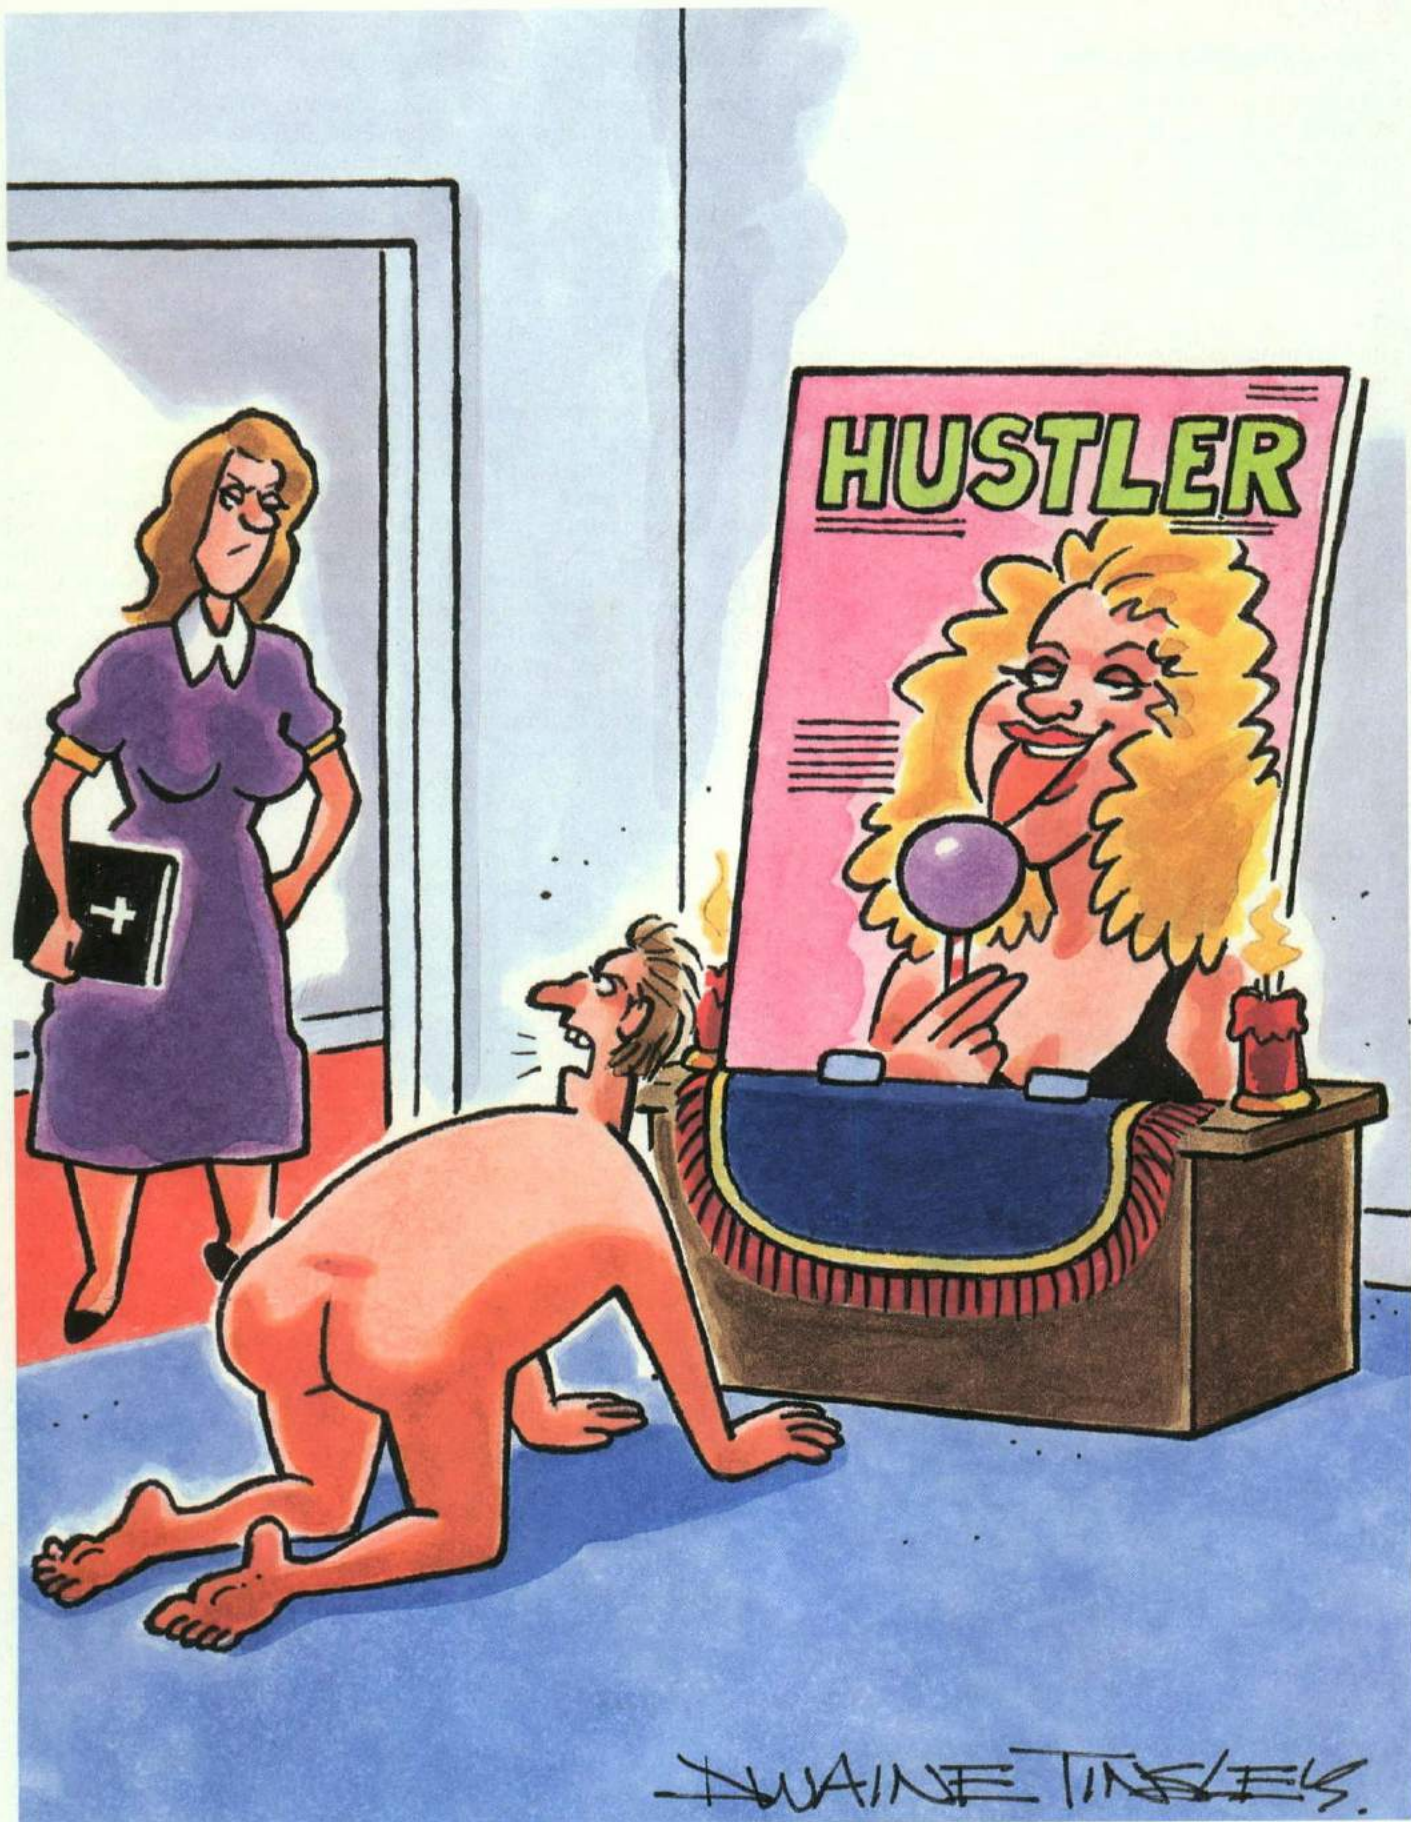

"Once we got out of the dentist's line of sight, the wife totally changed. She came alive. Suddenly she's looking a lot better; the whole deal looked a lot better.

"She was naked and on me, snapping my buttons to rip away my clothes. My jeans weren't even all the way off my ass, and she was scarfing my cock. She must have been starved. She had high, pointy tits, and her nipples were sticking up like little rock candies. I fell back on the bed, and she got my shoes untied and my pants off without her tongue missing a swipe. During the drive out, I'd been worried about having to eat the pussy of some woman I didn't really care for, but she didn't have time for that.

"I got my hand on her snatch, but only for a second, and it was sopping. Her cunt climbed up, and she rode hard on the saddle. It was all right. She put on a good show, thrashing above me. I would have done her for free.

"The only problem was the coke. I was still a kid; so there was no question about my cock staying hard, but she

"Yeah, well, you worship your way—I'll worship my way!"

Gigolo

"The contemporary female shies away from committed relationships just as often as men do. Rather than getting into a real relationship, she opts for a pretend one. Louie will charge it to her credit card."

wasn't able to make me come. She's sweating, hollering, hair's all matted, giving everything she had, then she falls over limp. She can't take it anymore.

"So I flip her onto her back and start drilling. She gets all rejuvenated, going for another orgasm. I like what I see, but there's a mirror over the bed, and I look up into it. Cindra and the dentist are standing in the doorway, done already. The dentist is all furrowed—maybe I'm doing more than he'd paid for—and Cindra's looking at her watch; so I hurried up the finish.

"The wife tried to slip an extra tip to me, and get a contact number, but her old man was watching her pretty close, and she wasn't able to pull it off."

Mark Goes Pro: "New York turned hard; so I came back to L.A. and got shit work valeting cars at a restaurant in Brentwood. We did a big lunch business. All the Brentwood ladies came in with their chic German cars.

"I've never been shy around women. I enjoy being attractive, and they chatted me up while I held the car door open and the lady adjusted her hemline and seatbelt. A couple of them asked my name, then they all knew my name. My shift would be ending, and the parking manager would come out and say, 'Hey,

Mark—you got one on the phone.'

"It'd be a Brentwood lunch lady. She'd forgotten her sunglasses after lunch. They always knew exactly where they'd left the glasses, and they knew I'd deliver them up to the pad.

"This happened at least a dozen times. The Brentwood ladies had deemed me worthy, and they were shameless. They'd seduce me, almost as if sex had not occurred to them, then send me off with a big tip for bringing up the sunglasses. A few of them didn't realize that a payment was in order. I'd stand there looking tongue-tied until they figured it out. Anyway, some days I'd have three pairs of sunglasses to deliver.

"All these women talk. Eventually a man named Louie Worms heard about this hustling stud who was valet parking cars out in Brentwood. Louie Worms is an agent. He recruited me out of the parking lot, gave me a pager, told me I was an escort. Louie likes to brag that I was a hick snatch-hound who he discovered and molded into an urbane gigolo. He's full of shit. I've got natural talent. Nothing else to it. All Louie did was take the spare sunglasses out of my life."

Mark's Client Base: "Any skag woman can get some decent guy to fawn all over her, but slavish devotion gets so messy when it's real. Not every woman can tolerate that emotional entanglement. The contemporary female shies away from committed relationships just as often as men do. She'll decide she's too busy, or too picky. Maybe she wants something on the side that won't threaten her marriage. Maybe she very much wants to be in control, or she needs that cushion of distance that the exchange of money provides. Whatever the reason, rather than getting into a real relationship, she opts for a pretend one. Louie will charge it to her credit card."

Mark's Modus Operandi: "The client pays me to create the illusion of romance. I will be charming. I will be attentive. I will defer to her often, but not when we're dancing. After dinner, the theater, I offer to see her to her door, unless she's married. The wives I meet in a rented room, but the process is the same. I make the pass. I make the pass as if I can't help it, not as if I were bought.

"One lady wouldn't fuck me until the third date. She tipped big on the first night, but she only gave me one drink and a peck on the cheek, then kicked me out. I appreciated the tip—I figured she was showing her class even though we hadn't clicked. Then she calls back for a second date. I'm surprised. So we go out for dinner and a gallery, then back to her place. This time we were making out on the couch, and I was fingering her crotch, but she wouldn't allow my hand inside her panties. She sent me home, and I actually convinced myself that I had blueballs. I knew what was up, and I was ready for her to call again. On the third date, we sealed the deal."

Mark's Trade Secret: "With some, perhaps the majority, of the women I service, I display an ardor for them that is somewhat greater than what I really feel. A literal-minded person might contend that I was lying to these women, and I am compelled to agree.

"The foremost, indispensable ingredient of the successful lie is sincerity. For the lie to work, the liar must be totally sincere. That's the trick. It separates the smooth pros from the crude hustlers, and it's not an easy one to learn. Women will be blind to facts and reality, but they can sniff out any kernel of insincerity through a ton of bullshit."

Mark on Penis Size: "Some people say it's not so important in regular life if a guy's got a little dick or not, but I'm glad I've got a big one. A large cock is a definite asset to my game. If a woman's

A cache of stolen masterpieces buried by the Nazis in a vault 2,100 feet underground was discovered on April 7, 1945, by officers from the U.S. Army's 90th Division.

In Adolf Hitler's lust for plunder during the Nazis' early victories at war, the Fuehrer prized one trophy above all others: precious works of art. Raping nations of their cultural heritage not only demoralized conquered states—the reflected glory of pillaged landmarks of civilization lent the Third Reich an aura of grandeur.

Following the Anschluss—Nazi Germany's annexation of Austria on March 13, 1938—Hitler oversaw the wholesale confiscation of Jewish property, including the great art collections of barons Louis and Alphonse de Rothschild, the priceless paintings and rare-volumes library of Baron Gutmann, and many more. Hitler's invasion of Czechoslovakia in May 1939 involved the seizure not only of Jewish property, but also the library of Prague University, the holdings of the Czech National Museum, the palaces of the Schwarzenbergs and Colloredos, and the Lobkowitz collections, which included Flemish painter Breughel's masterpiece, Hay Harvest. The best of this loot was shipped to Germany, as were the Habsburg crown regalia from Vienna and the Bohemian crown jewels from Prague.

Having promised the Austrian city of Linz, where he had gone to school, an art collection that would be the envy of the world, Hitler demonstrated in the Polish campaign of 1939 how highly the acquisition of precious art rated in his strategic military operations. SS units accompanying the invading Nazi troops, provided with detailed information about the locations of dozens of works of art, captured the famous altar by Veit Stoss in Cracow, which was relocated to Berlin, and the legendary Czartoryski collections of coins and relics, Limoges enamels, and engravings by 15th-century artist Albrecht Dürer, also shipped to Berlin. Two weeks after the Nazi occupation of France, Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel issued an order to safeguard the art treasures of Paris, "especially the Jewish property," until Hitler's representatives could examine the art and cart off the pick of the lot.

According to Lynn H. Nicholas, author of The Rape of Europe: The Fate of Europe's Treasures in the Third Reich and the Second World War (Knopf, 1994), the Nazi museums intended to continue to augment their holdings by confiscating the property of "enemy aliens," who eventually included all Jews, no matter what nationality.

As the fortunes of war turned against him, Hitler sought to ensure that the stolen treasure he had amassed would forever remain the Third Reich's. A cache of stolen masterpieces buried by the Nazis in a vault 2,100 feet underground was discovered on April 7, 1945, by a contingent of officers from the U.S. Army's 90th Division. The vault, located at the bottom of the Kaiseroda mine near Merkers, Germany's geographical center, yielded a huge hoard of treasure, including gold valued at an excess of $238 million. Approximately 400 tons of priceless, purloined art—including masterpieces by Rembrandt, Titian, Renoir and Dürer—was found in a tunnel chiseled into the dry subterranean salt rock. Also uncovered in the bowels of the Kaiseroda mine was a 3,000-year-old painted-limestone bust of Nefertiti, the Egyptian queen, the most valuable work of art in all of Germany.

The art cache at Merkers was sufficiently interesting to entice General Eisenhower, at the time the Supreme Commander of the Allied Expeditionary Forces, to visit the mine. After journeying a half-mile underground to view the booty, the party stepped into the gloom. Eisenhower, accompanied by generals Omar Bradley and George Patton, was awed by the stacks of glittering oils lining the tunnel walls.

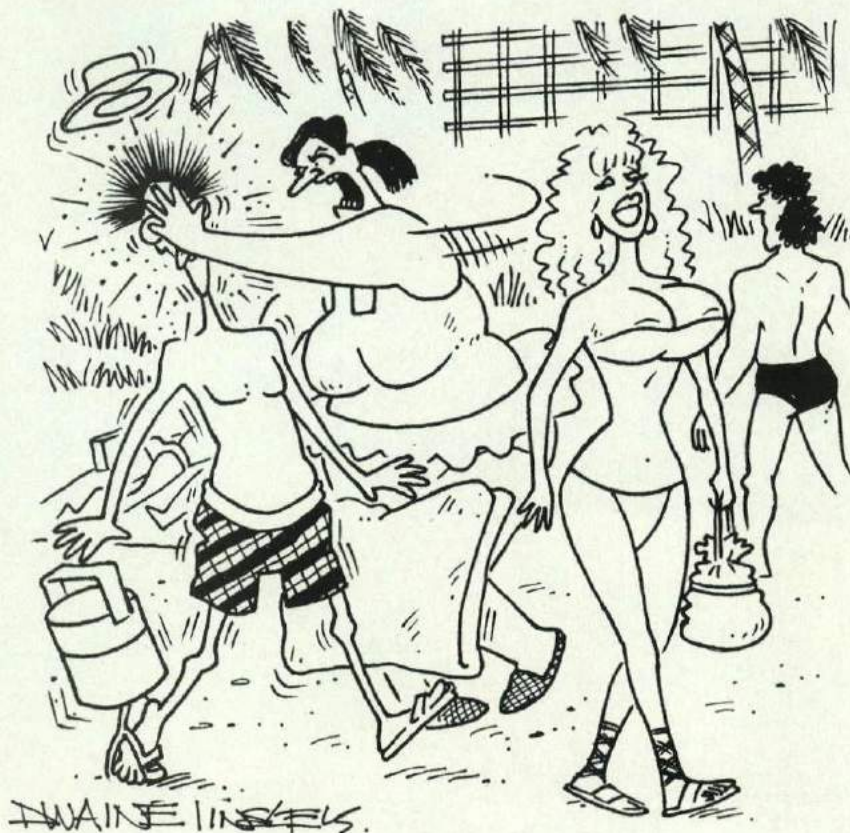

After being loaded into 32 trucks for transfer to Munich for storage, the convoy of art was accompanied by five U.S. infantry troops, two machine-gun platoons, ten antiaircraft units and air cover.

Francis Taylor, wartime director of New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art, argued vehemently that the contents of the Merkers mine should be retained by the U.S. Army as spoils of war. Art experts the world over disagreed.

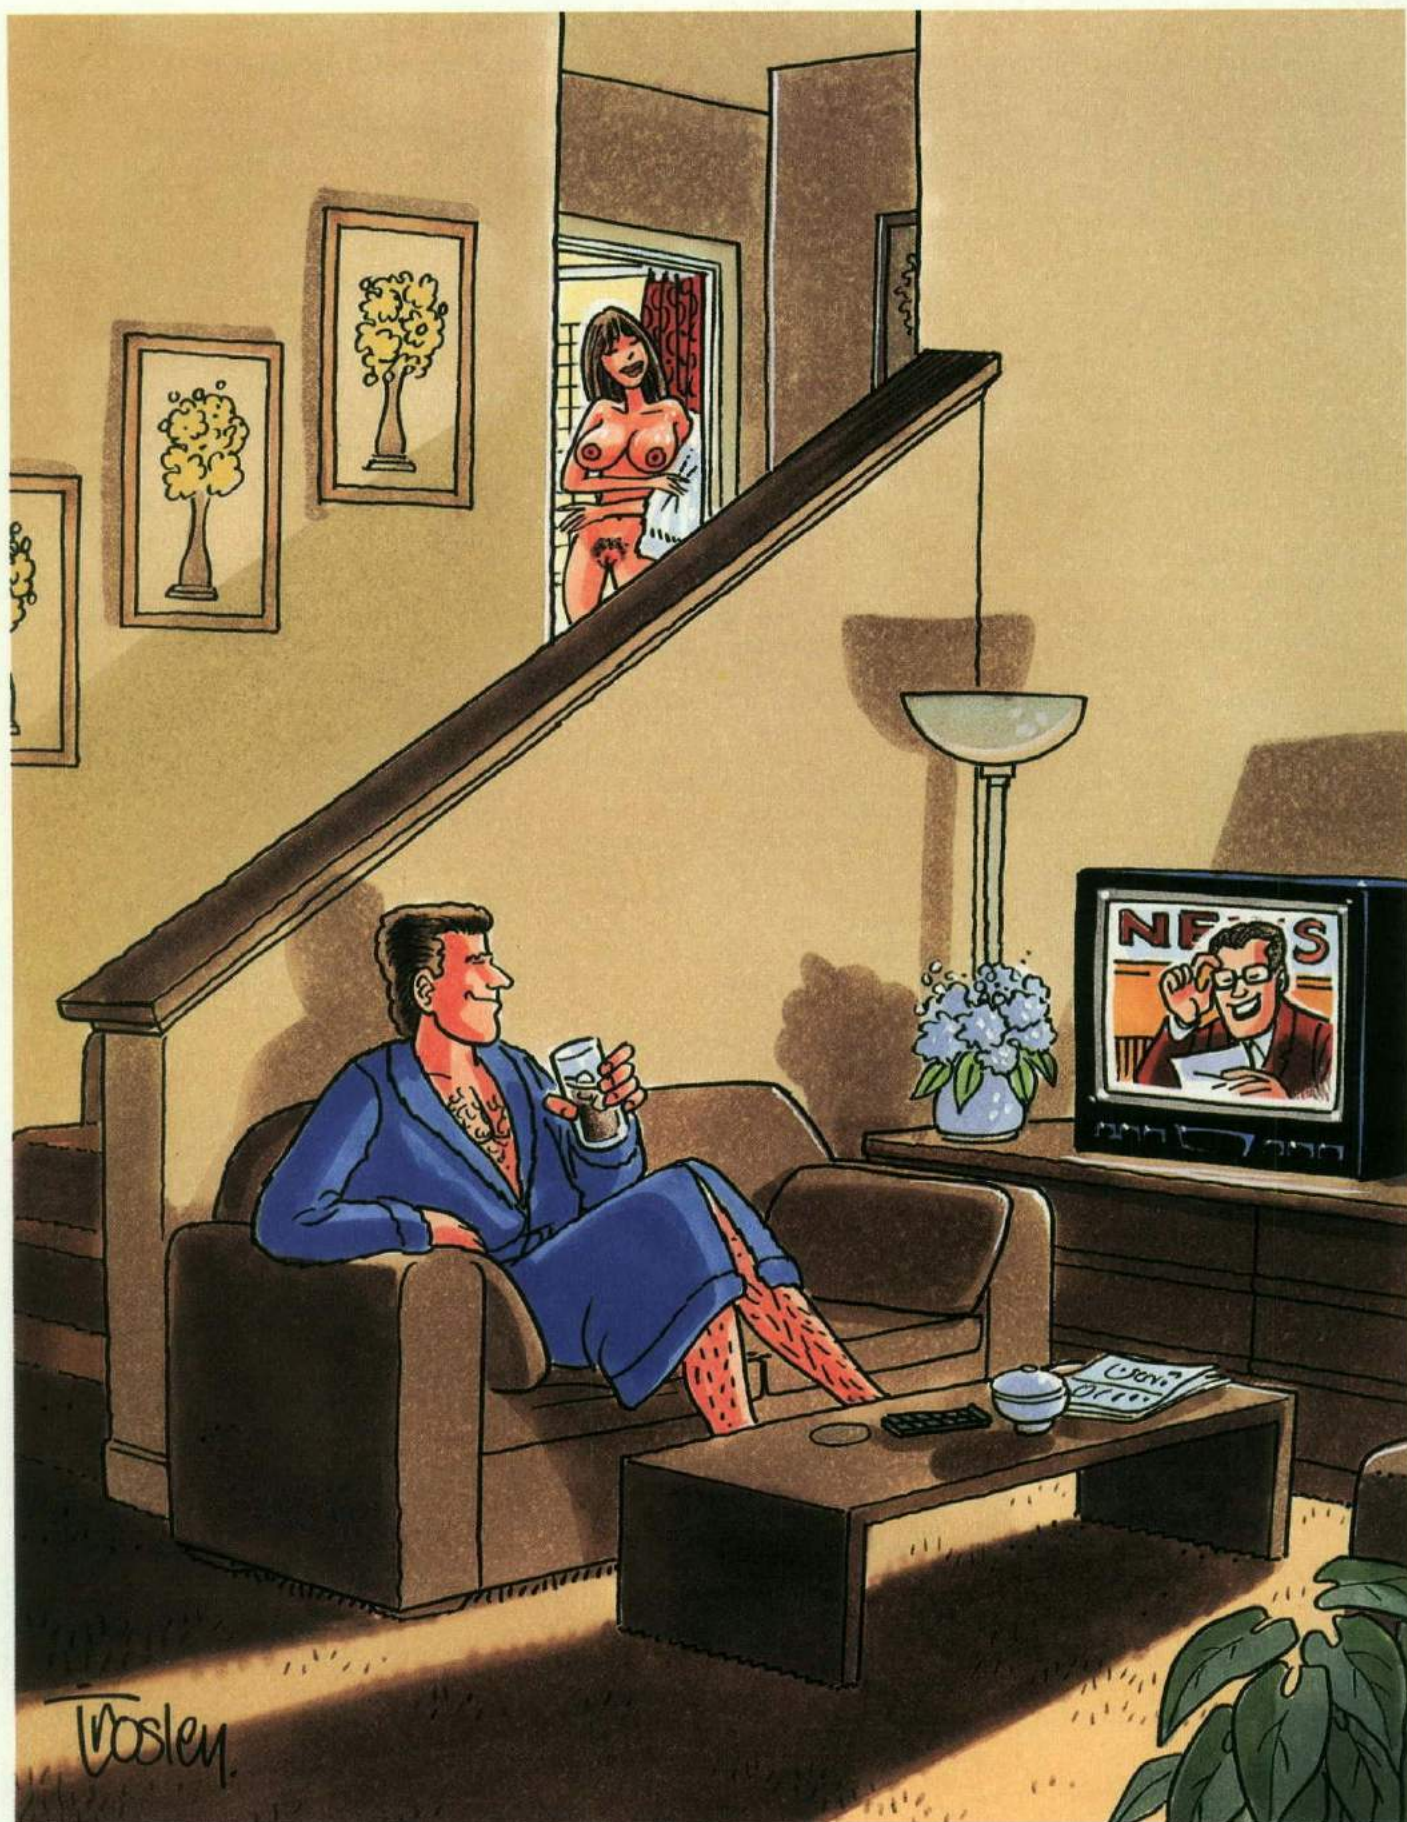

Explains Sol Chaneles, former chairman of the Department of Criminal Justice at Rutgers University in New Jersey, "The controversy over the Merkers treasures raged amid persistent rumors that U.S. officers and government personnel were involved in massive thefts from the Munich repository. Thousands of ounces of gold were apparently missing, along with hundreds of millions of dollars in cash and untold numbers of priceless works of art."

According to Chaneles, all of the records pertaining to the Merkers inventory, as well as military intelligence reports concerning looting by U.S. personnel, were later classified by the CIA, and remain so to this day.

"I don't want anybody ever to say that son-of-a-bitch Patton stole any part of it," General Patton told General Hobart Gay, ordering Gay to have the "bastards" behind the theft turned over to the Army's Criminal Investigation Division. The same day—six months after inspecting the

Upon earning his degree in art history at Yale University in 1934—many years before the Nazis posed a global threat—an American art enthusiast named James Kronthal found employment overseas, joining the prestigious Frankfurt, Germany, banking house of Speyer and Company. Shortly after, Kronthal established a brokerage to market artworks confiscated by the Nazis from Jewish collections. Wealthy, educated and American, Kronthal attracted the attention of art lovers Heinrich Himmler and Nazi Party propagandist Joseph Goebbels, both of whom Kronthal advised on art matters. Kronthal's fondness for young boys placed him at the mercy of some of the most ruthless men in Germany at the time. On more than one occasion, Himmler—who, as Reichsführer of the SS, was the second most powerful man in the Third Reich—and Reichsminister Hermann Göring found it in their best interest to rescue Kronthal out of the hands of the Gestapo, who repeatedly detained him on charges of pedophilia. However, the German police kept meticulous files, and Kronthal's arrest record, carefully stored away, would come back to haunt him later.

Shortly after his final brush with the Gestapo in 1934, Kronthal returned to the U.S. to pursue a graduate degree at Harvard. Following the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, Kronthal enlisted in the U.S. Office of Strategic Services (OSS), an agency created by President Roosevelt in 1942 to bring the fragmented and uncoordinated strands of American intelligence together under the authority of a single organization. Kronthal was assigned to Switzerland's Bern Station under a man named Allen Dulles.

At the close of the war, millions of pieces of Nazi-plundered precious art lacked accounting, including paintings, sculpture, jewelry and creations of glass and porcelain, royal regalia and ancient manuscripts, many representing the greatest achievements of European civilization. Much of the loot was eventually funneled into Switzerland. By 1942, galleries in Zurich, Madrid, Lausanne, New York and elsewhere were glutted with stolen artworks, sold at a fraction of their pre-war worth.

During the war effort, U.S. allies had criticized the Americans for their lack of any central intelligence function. The OSS, disbanded in 1945, gave rise to a new organization—the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), officially instated by President Truman in 1947. In that year, under CIA auspices, Kronthal succeeded Allen Dulles as head of the Bern Station in Switzerland. The position put him in charge of most of the covert art-recovery operations in Western Europe. In effect, Kronthal was given nearly complete authority in the handling of the cultural wealth of Europe.

In a problem unforeseen by American officials, Kronthal's pedophilic leanings rendered him vulnerable to blackmail by the Soviet intelligence service, and classified information on the CIA's European activities was soon leaking from Bern to Moscow Center. In 1952, Kronthal returned to Washington to assist in Company reorganization. A year later, he met secretly with his former Bern handler, Allen Dulles, the newly appointed Director of Central Intelligence. The subject of discussion is not known. The next day, however, Kronthal's housekeeper found him dead, an apparent suicide.

"The death was quickly hushed up," recalls late CIA operative William Corson. According to Corson, the Washington police force was called in "to cover up what the CIA wanted hidden."

Among the Company secrets that died with Kronthal were specific details regarding the nascent CIA's operations in recovering millions of pieces of stolen art.

A postwar inventory by the U.S. Army's Monuments, Fine Arts and Archives Division (MFAA) identified 16 million pieces of Nazi-pillaged art. Since the war, a considerable percentage of these artifacts have been stored in American bank and U.S. Treasury Department vaults. The extent of the collection is not known: The CIA classified the items inventoried by the MFAA a "national security" secret. In a rare instance of retribution, the Hungarian crown jewels, liberated by American troops from a German salt mine in 1945, were returned to Hungary in 1978 by order of President Jimmy Carter.

As early as 1941, the U.S. Treasury Department had laid claim to German assets. Officially, the proceeds were intended to serve as a buffer against inflation in postwar Europe and South America. Unofficially, according to Christopher Simpson, author of Blowback: America's Recruitment of Nazis and its Effects on the Cold War (Weidenfeld & Nicolson, 1988), the CIA

"Mr. Dahmer—we've been expecting you."

According to Christopher Simpson, the CIA illegally drew from the Treasury's vaults of Nazi spoils to finance covert operations abroad.

illegally drew from the Treasury's vaults of Nazi spoils to finance covert operations abroad.

Simpson charges that the first transfers of "black currency" from the "Exchange Stabilization Fund" to pay for CIA activities were laundered through a maze of bank accounts to influence the outcome of Italian political campaigns in 1947.

In 1963, a newspaper in Graz, Italy, learned of the transactions, reporting that "valuables of gruesome origin, and worth millions, have vanished without a trace. Other millions of mysterious origin have showed up in the possession of former leaders of the Nazi Party and the SS."

Affirms Chaneles: "Countless objects can probably be found today in the homes of friends and relatives of Nazi and Nazi-authorized art dealers, where they were stored 'temporarily.'"

In 1987, at least five paintings hanging at New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art were identified as Nazi confiscations, including the famed Boy Blowing Bubbles by 18th-century painter Jean-Baptiste-Siméon Chardin. Other paintings that the Metropolitan obtained from the Holocaust and European occupations, as reported by the New York Times, include Man With a Bulbous Nose by Adrian Brouwer, Young Woman Reading by Jean-Honoré Fragonard, and Eugene Delacroix's Lion Attacking a Snake—all priceless masterpieces.

In the Metropolitan's catalog of holdings, the sources of these acquisitions were obscured. The Delacroix is not mentioned. The Fragonard's seizure by the Nazis is glossed over. However, a 40-year-old Metropolitan publication reports that Boy Blowing Bubbles bears "the labels of the Einsatzstab Reichsleiter Rosenberg," the German looting organization that Hitler instated to transport all valuable cultural goods from conquered states to Germany.

Metropolitan officials claim that the Chardin was legally purchased from Wildenstein and Company, who supposedly obtained the work from the heirs of its legal owner, a Jewish banker who fled Stuttgart when Hitler assumed power. This banker, named Fritz Mannheimer, perished of a heart attack following the Nazi looting of his Dutch bank. The SS purchased Mannheimer's art collection from his creditors at a price that mocked its true value, under threat of confiscation as enemy property if the sale was refused.

The museum officials might be expected to be better informed. In 1944, Metropolitan director Francis Taylor founded and led the MFAA art-recovery unit under an executive order signed by President Roosevelt. Assigned to the OSS (under Kronthal), Taylor's field agents became privy to intelligence on Nazi dealings in looted art.

Taylor's "Art Commandos" retained as a consultant Ernst Hanfstaengl, director of Munich's Alte Pinakothek Museum, formerly one of a group of art experts who advised Hitler on Jewish-owned galleries and private collections worth plundering. An American-born, transatlantic socialite and Nazi spy, Hanfstaengl had attended Harvard with Roosevelt, resettled in Germany, and partially financed Hitler's early political career with funds from wealthy friends on Wall Street.

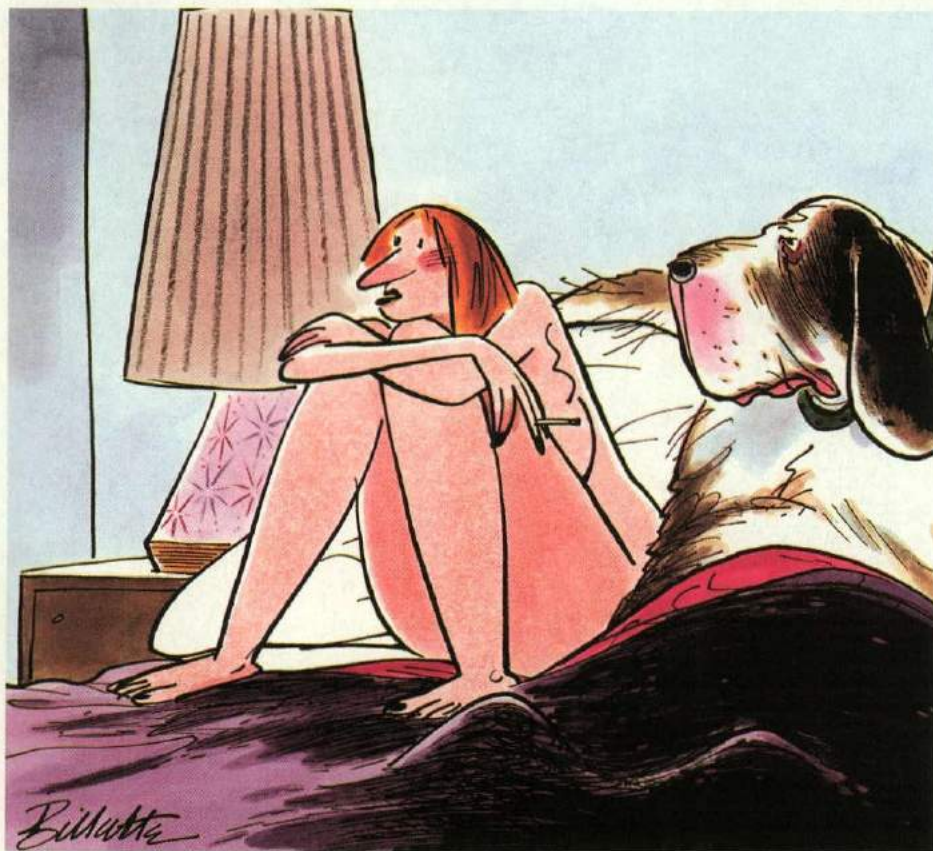

Working as a Nazi spy in the U.S. in the mid-'30s, Hanfstaengl had established a network of Nazi cells in travel bureaus across the country. Among them was the New York branch of the Hamburg-American steamship line—directed by George Bush's maternal grandfather, George Herbert Walker. Hamburg-American financed scores of pro-Nazi propaganda efforts in 1930s America. The company was seized by the American government in 1942 under the Trading With the Enemy Act. Hanfstaengl, threatened with deportation, was taken under wing by then Assistant Secretary of War John J. McCloy (a postwar CIA director), and comfortably housed at Fort Myer—headquarters of the Washington garrison—as a guest of the U.S. government.

After the war, Hanfstaengl resettled in Germany, where he assisted Francis Taylor, future director of New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art, in the CIA/MFAA art restitution program.

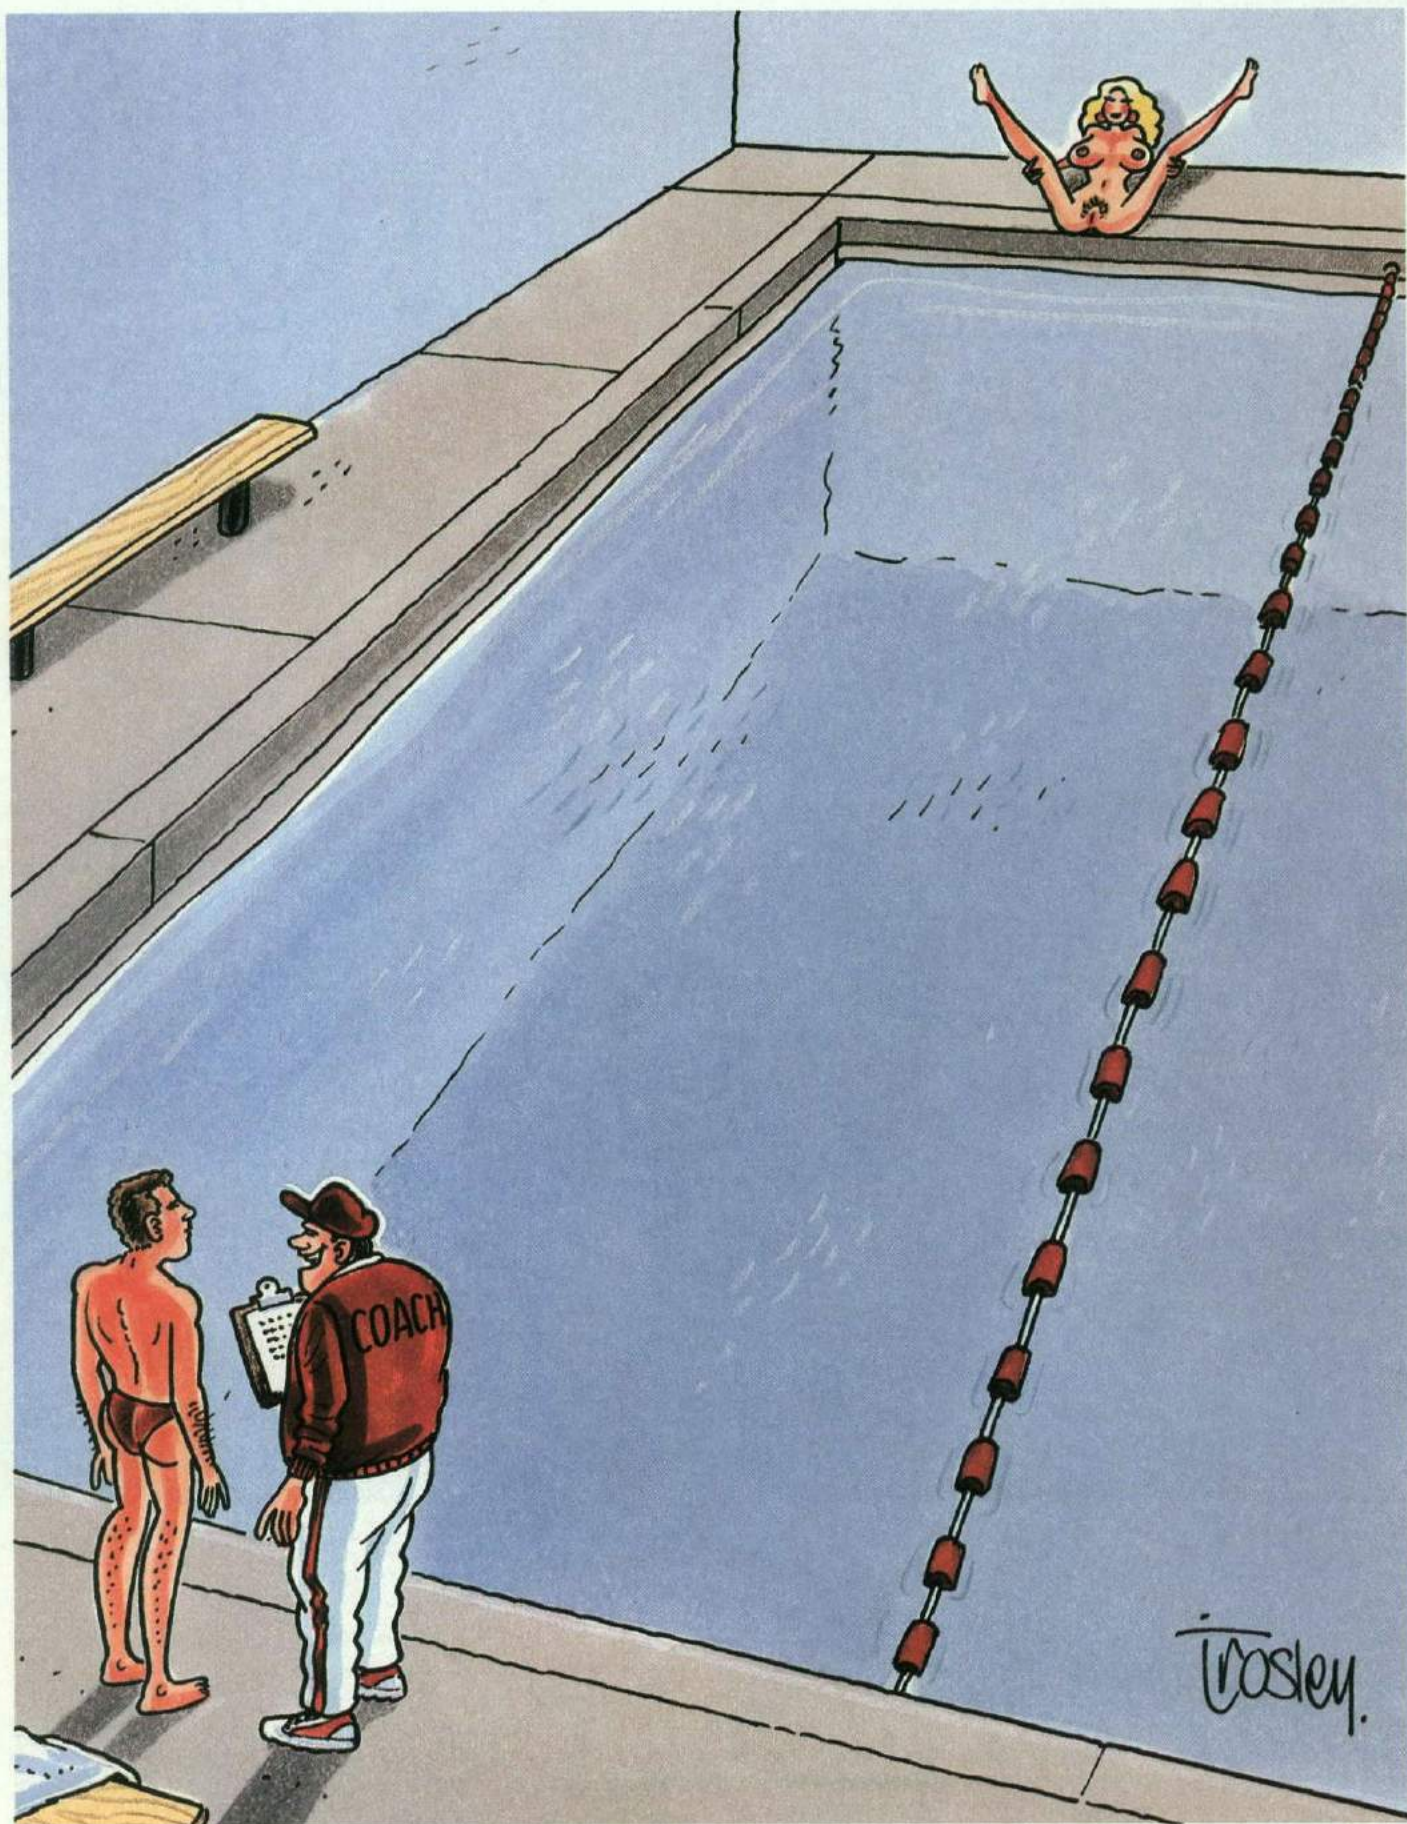

In 1945 President Truman sent a representative from the National Gallery to the Army's art repository in Weisbaden (the former headquarters of Göring's Luftwaffe) to make arrangements to ship 202 of the collection's finest paintings to Washington. Appalled, the officers at Weisbaden sent a protest to General Lucius Clay, the high commissioner of Germany's American zone, decrying Truman's request as morally untenable.

The U.S. seizure of this precious art—including works by such masters as Botticelli, Dürer, Breughel, Vermeer and Rembrandt—prompted Sumner Crosby, a French scholar serving with Taylor in the OSS art-recovery operation, to resign from the unit in September 1945. James Plaut of the OSS Art Looting Investigation Unit wrote that the American plan to retain liberated Nazi spoils as war reparations dif-

HUSTLER'S Q & A WITH THE SWINGERS NEXT DOOR

Interview by Tim Conaway

Tossing off the popular image of sexually ravenous predators traveling in mated pairs, a new breed of swingers claims a new kind of kink: respectability. HUSTLER talks with swing-set gurus Ric and Cindy about the surprising state of the swap.

Swapping Stories

"We've found that the majority of people in the lifestyle are middle-class, educated, family oriented folks who happen to act on their sexual fantasies."

"Swinging is a shared, nonmonogamous relationship between two or more committed couples. It can be as simple as watching and gentle cross-touching, or as wild as a group orgy with several couples. The horizons are unlimited."

So say San Diego, California's Ric and Cindy, editors of Loving Alternatives (P. O. Box 459, San Dimas, CA 91773). Swingdom's most down-to-earth publication, Loving Alternatives represents Ric and Cindy's unorthodox view of the mate-swapping community: namely, that most swinging couples are ordinary, downright conservative folk—outside the sack.

Since Ric and Cindy both swing and speak up for it, HUSTLER solicited their unique take on what they term a legitimate and respectable alternative lifestyle. Then again, their conservative editorial outlook may be the ultimate kink. Among the principles of swing etiquette, per Loving Alternatives: Be courteous, respond to all invites, never arrive empty-handed and always call afterward to say thanks.

HUSTLER: Loving Alternatives takes a different approach from most other swingers contact magazines. There's a genuine feeling of community.

RIC: There is a swingers community. Cindy and I are active, enthusiastic members. At Loving Alternatives, our editorial policy is aimed toward encouragement and support. We're especially mindful of new people checking into the lifestyle. Years ago, in our first move toward swinging, we ran an ad in a typical contact publication. We got reams of responses, but not from the kind of people we were looking to meet. Not that our interests were strange or bizarre. We were simply searching for people like us.

CINDY: We got everything that walked.

RIC: It was pretty discouraging. We changed our ad, made it more specific. That brought us fewer—but nicer—responses. The problem was that the magazine we advertised in didn't really reflect our interests. On the very first page was a photo of a nude man blindfolded and tied to a chair. He was looking for people to beat him. Any curious couple exploring the swinging lifestyle for the first time would have been turned off right away. At Loving Alternatives, we're not necessarily trying to attract people to swinging—but we certainly don't want to turn people off.

CINDY: We thought, If this is what swingers contact magazines are like, then we ought to start our own.

HUSTLER: Many contact magazines increase newsstand sales by putting racy photos in the books—not necessarily targeting people who are interested in swinging, but anyone who wants to look at kinky pictures. Loving Alternatives will publish photos only if they are in "good taste." Is there a price to be paid in sales terms?

RIC: Loving Alternatives is not a strictly commercial venture for Cindy and me. We've set a goal to publish a magazine that maintains a positive and realistic portrayal of all alternative lifestyles, especially swinging. People who submit photos to contact magazines sometimes feel that a kinky photo is required in order to have a successful ad. We don't agree. By and large, the public perception is that swinging is a tawdry means for getting sexual kicks. That doesn't reflect our experience. We've found that the majority of people in the lifestyle are middle-class, educated, family oriented folks who happen to act on their sexual fantasies. These are the people Loving Alternatives goes about trying to serve, whether or not it means the highest profit for us. We look after our readership. We question every ad that lists what looks like a home address. We suggest people get a post office box or a mailing service. The magazine includes an information page, explaining how to write an ad, when not to forward a picture....

CINDY: People tell us that talking about AIDS is bad for business. Loving Alternatives enlists a doctor who writes about all sorts of health issues. We think death is much worse for business.

HUSTLER: Health awareness must be a major concern for swingers these days.

CINDY: It is for anyone worth swinging with. But there are varying degrees of responsibility. Most every swinging couple gets a room at the hotel where there's a social event. A guy and gal will run into what they think is an attractive couple, and say, "We've been looking for you." The other couple might reply, "Well, we've just been with so-and-so and so-and-so." The first couple will ask, "Where'd you meet them? What do you know about them?" If the second couple replies, "Well, we don't know anything," chances are they will find themselves finishing up the evening alone. Couples that take up with strangers almost immediately cut themselves out of the loop of responsi-

Timmy loved his new toy train set. It was big enough for him to ride around on, which he did all day long, repeatedly announcing, "All the motherfuckers gettin' on, get on! All the motherfuckers gettin' off, get off!"

Shocked to hear such language coming from her 8-year-old son, Timmy's mother sent him to his room. "Don't come out," she warned, "until you've cleaned up your act."

After Timmy sulked away most of the afternoon, his mother saw how much he missed the train; so, at last, she relented, and told him to go play.

The boy raced gleefully to the model engine and, hopping aboard, declared: "We are back in service, motherfuckers, and if any of you assholes has got shit to say about the three hour delay, take it to the bitch in the kitchen!"

Question: Why was the black youth so interested in his family tree?

Answer: They were still living in it.

Richardson rushed to the doctor, astonished to see that his dick had turned bright orange overnight.

"Perhaps your behavior brought on this condition," the medic proposed. "What were you doing the last time you remember your penis being its normal color?"

"I was taking it easy," Richardson replied. "My new HUSTLER had just come in the mail; so I sat down to enjoy it with a big bag of Cheetos."

Question: Why are schizophrenics afraid to shave?

Answer: They don't trust that fucker with the razor.

A pair of young girls from the mountains rode down to a nearby village on their bikes.

"I've never come this way before," observed one.

"Neither have I," said the other. "It must be the cobblestones."

One brutally humid day in ancient Egypt, a galley filled with slaves was rowing Cleopatra's barge up the Nile.

The captain approached them with good news and bad news. "The good news," he shouted, "is that you will all have the rest of the morning off. You may do whatever you wish for a few hours, and then meet in the royal dining cabin for a feast at midday."

"What's the bad news?" one of the slaves called out.

"This afternoon," the captain answered, "the Queen wants to go waterskiing."

The HUSTLER Dictionary defines swap meat as: two fags in a 69.

Looking upon his wife's bare, open pussy on the night of their golden anniversary, Chet wept uncontrollably.

"What's wrong?" his spouse queried.

"Fifty years ago, I couldn't wait to eat it," Chet dourly responded, "and now it looks like it can't wait to eat me!"

Question: How many Kennedys does it take to commit sexual assault?

Answer: One and a fifth.

Three pals sat in a bar discussing their children.

"I've got five boys," boasted Ross, "enough for a basketball team."

"Well, I've got nine boys," trumpeted Johnson, "enough for a baseball team."

Clark, the third man, smiled broadly. "I've got 18 girls," he beamed, "enough for a golf course."

Question: What happens at a cannibal bachelor party?

Answer: A girl jumps out of the cake, and everyone has a piece.

A man walked into a store, and ordered a pint of potato salad, 12 pierogies and a half pound of kielbasa.

"You must be Polish," the counterwoman mused.

"How did you know?" the customer wondered.

"Because," the worker pointed out, "this is a hardware store."

ble swingers. Many people list HIV-negative in their ads, but even the most recent test is only good until the next time they have sex.

HUSTLER: What's the one thing about swinging that the typical, uninformed American might find surprising?

RIC: When swingers get together, 90 percent of their time is spent in social interaction. That's social, not sexual.

CINDY: Take a look at last weekend.

RIC: Cindy and I had friends over. On Friday night, we went out to a movie, and then we played pinochle. Nothing happened afterward. On Saturday, Cindy had to work. The lady of the visiting couple slept late, and the guy and I worked in the yard, fixing a fence. Cindy came home around two, we had lunch, we talked about our upcoming trip to Hawaii, fixed a nice dinner...

CINDY: ...played some more pinochle, and finally got around to partying.

RIC: The sex was enjoyable. That's the bottom line. But it was no more enjoyable than the rest of the time we spent together.

HUSTLER: A lot of ads mention couples' interests in such things as light B&D or light S&M. Light seems to indicate it's not a serious proposition.

RIC: Are you asking if these people are expressing a fantasy more than a determined commitment to those activities? I can't speak for any individual couples, but the nonmonogamous sexual community, as Loving Alternatives phrases it, definitely encourages fantasies. For instance, among the most popular social functions are what we call fantasy or fetish nights and "hookers" balls.

CINDY: There's so much to the lifestyle that isn't about sex. Most swingers develop a small circle of friends. Along with sharing sex, they enjoy having a good time out.

HUSTLER: Once interests beyond fucking come into play, is it harder or easier for couples to match up with each other?

RIC: Whether there's a sexual attraction or not, it's very difficult to find a perfect couple to swing with. Most of the ads in Loving Alternatives end by saying, "We're looking for the ideal couple with whom we can share a lifetime of intimacy." It may sound corny, but it's something most swingers are sincerely looking for. A certain percentage of the swing community is strictly into recreational fucking; we don't deny that. But the majority of people are looking for an intimacy that goes beyond that.

HUSTLER: Have you and Cindy found the perfect couple?

CINDY: Good question.

RIC: We're still looking. We've been disappointed many times. We'll get with a couple and do this and that, and then we'll drop them like a hot potato, or vice versa. I'm attracted to brunettes with small breasts and big ears. If the guy likes sports—very few men in the lifestyle like sports—that's a bonus. But most of all, I have to like them as a couple. If she's belittling him, or he's not attentive toward her, I'm turned off. Jealousies can develop, and insecurities. Getting to know a couple and finding things in common can be tough. Recently we met a couple at our favorite place for lunch in San Diego. They were good-looking, intelligent—everything seemed favorable. They told us they had some errands to run that afternoon, and would give Cindy and I a call that night. We waited. No call. We stayed over Sunday, no call. A week later, we got a letter from them saying that the visit was wonderful, but Cindy looked too much like the man's ex-wife for them to go any further with us.

CINDY: People who know how difficult it is to find an ideal husband or wife can understand why it's a hell of a hard time trying to find two other people.

HUSTLER: Are many in the swingers scene homophobic?

RIC: A major fantasy for the guys is seeing two women together.

HUSTLER: Do women have the complementary fantasy?

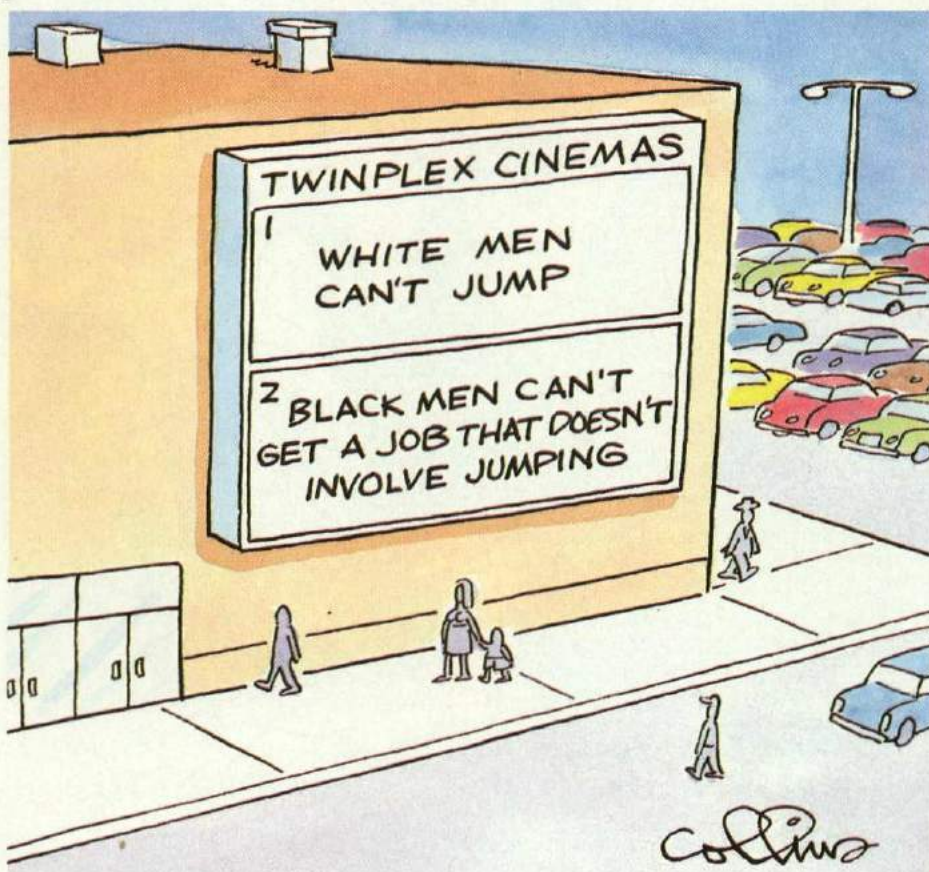

CINDY: Definitely. But most of the guys in the lifestyle are scared to death if a guy so much as gets near them.

RIC: What can I say? One time Cindy and I visited a well-known lesbian bar in Pomona with two of our lesbian friends. There were three female couples and Cindy and me. One of the girls said, "Have you ever seen a movie of two guys making love?" I thought, I can't say I have. I'm always harping on total sexual freedom; yet I couldn't deal with something like that, even on an imaginary level.

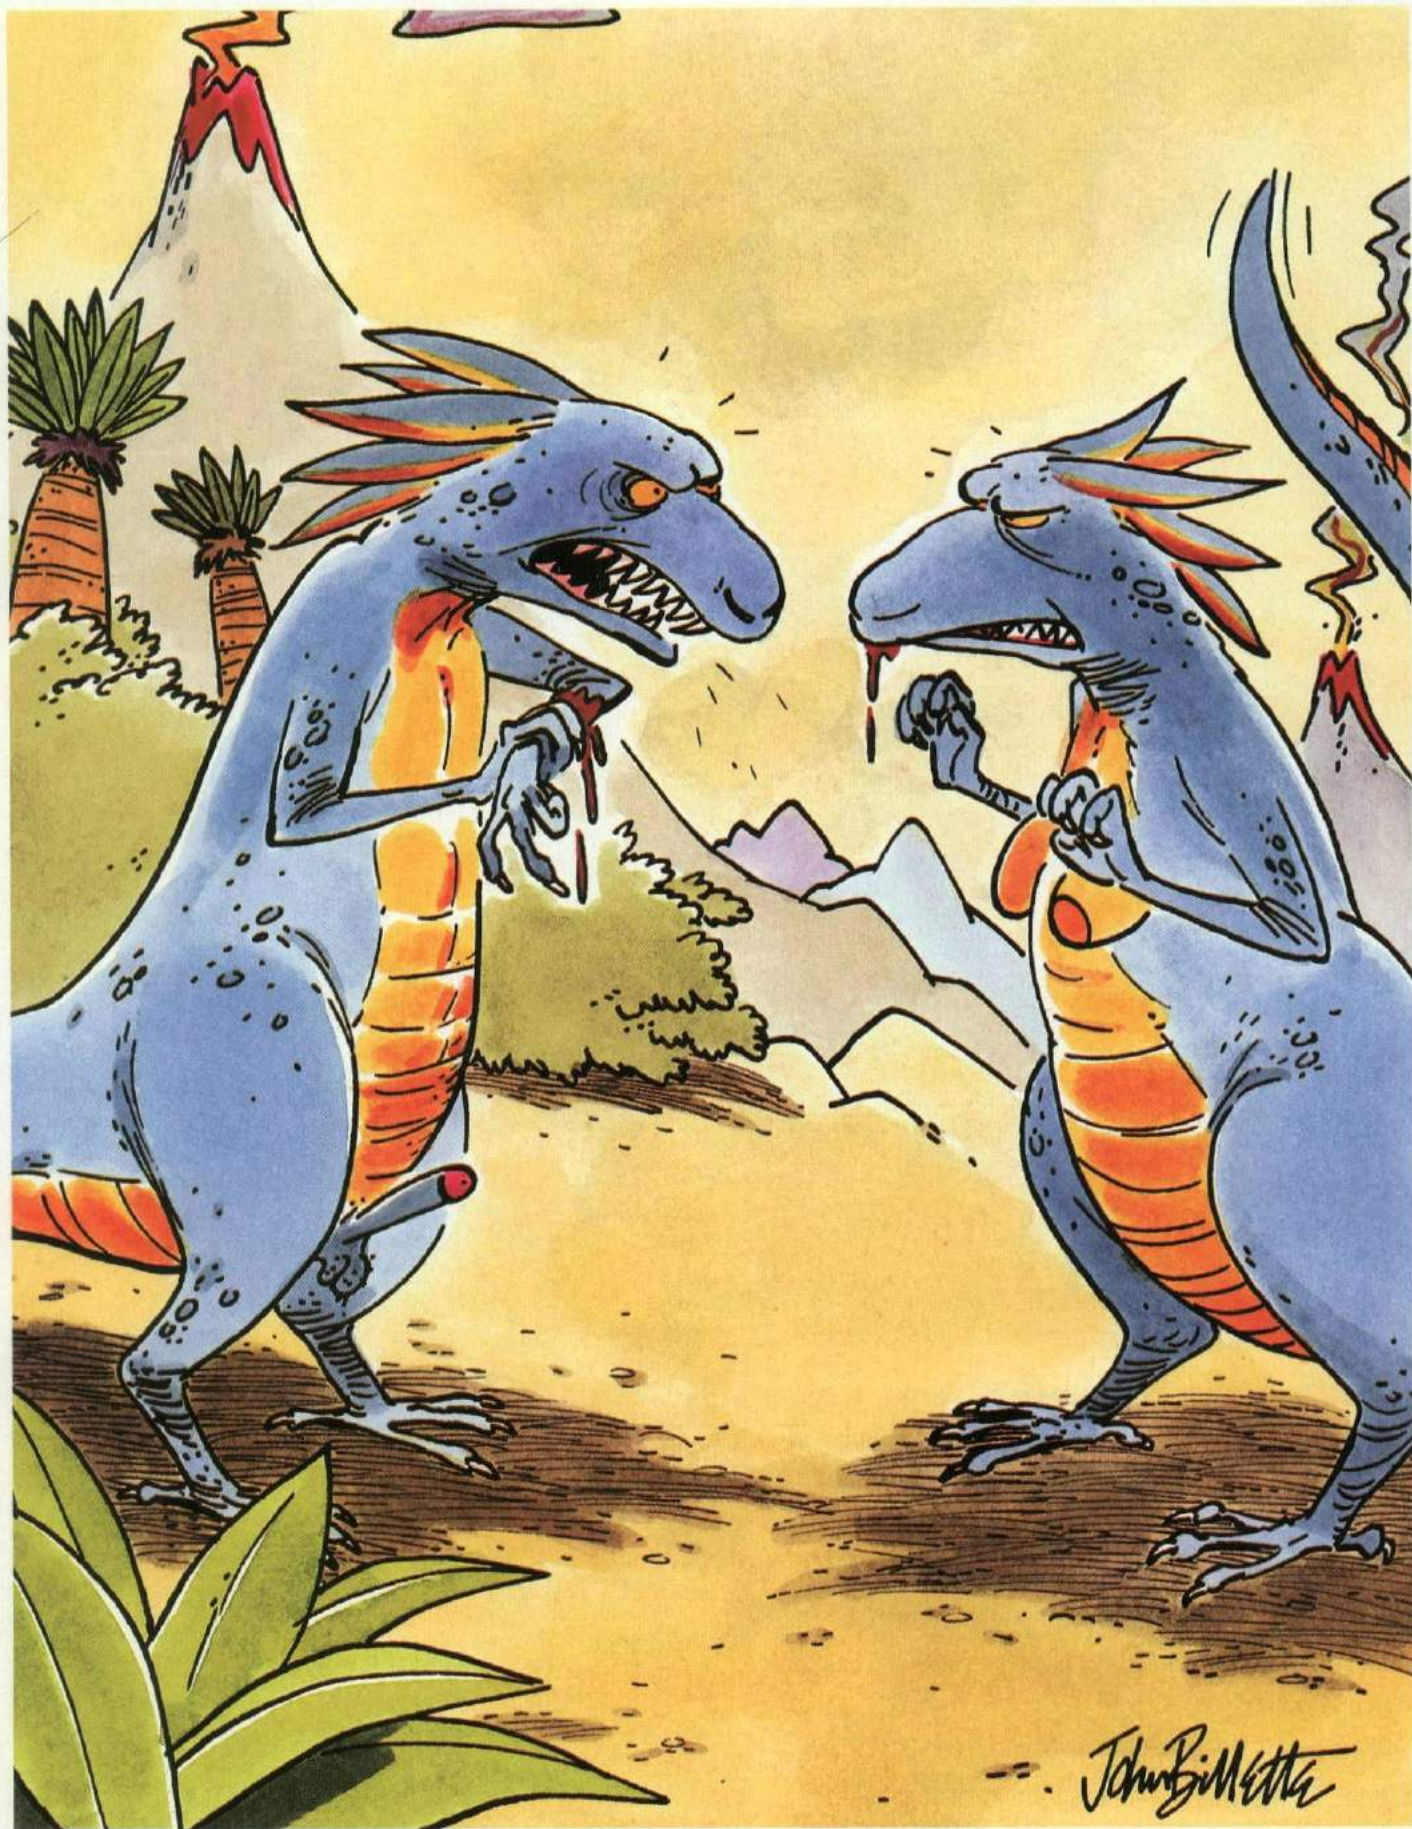

HUSTLER: If you respond to a couple that looks good in their magazine photo, but then find they don't look anything like it, are you crushed?

RIC: [Laughs.] Ads are an important, but ultimately tricky, first step. When we first advertised, Cindy and I met new couples a couple of nights a week for a while....

CINDY: A couple of nights a week? Try every night!

"Now that Communist rule has ended in my country," reveals Czech native Tereza, "I have everything I ever dreamed of: cars, a mansion, furs. Everything, that is, except a man to love me."

Tereza sighs. "I spend night after night alone in this tomb, dreaming of a man who'll caress my aching breasts and warm the cold pearl between my pussy lips with his tongue. But no one comes."

"Well, if no one wants my body, I don't want it either," Tereza declares, dramatically straddling the hard, wrought-iron railing around her balcony. "I'm going to throw myself off...oooooh. Never mind."

"We ran a dance social in a nice old hotel ballroom. If there had been a Bible study group next door, they wouldn't have guessed that we were a group of swingers."

RIC: We found out that physical differences didn't happen as much as that a lot of people had misrepresented themselves in various ways. Not so much about their weight or their looks...

CINDY: ...as much as who they were.

RIC: Exactly. For example, they'd say that they were experienced swingers and sensitive types, but then they'd want to party right at the initial meeting. Responsible swingers know that just isn't done.

HUSTLER: Do people lie in their Loving Alternatives ads?

RIC: If they do, they won't profit from it in the long run. Loving Alternatives encourages people to be honest. One time we printed an ad from an extremely heavy couple. Both partners, I would guess, weighed nearly 300 pounds. They sent a photo and wrote a wonderful ad that said, "You can see that we're heavy. However, we are considerate lovers, and weight doesn't inhibit us from having an erotic time." Instead of being deceitful, or telling a half-truth, they bared their souls. I'm sure they attracted more people by being honest than they would have by shading the truth.

HUSTLER: None of the ads in Loving Alternatives gives the impression that people who swing spend every minute having sex.

RIC: You sound disappointed.

HUSTLER: Well, yes.

CINDY: That's what you get for having false expectations.

RIC: People tend to judge our readership by stereotypes. Swingers definitely suffer from a negative public image. Not long ago, Cindy and I were asked to join the advisory board of the adult-video industry's Free Speech Coalition. Naturally, we were introduced as publishers of a swingers magazine. Judging by our reception, even the adult-entertainment industry thinks that swingers are the sleaze of the earth. Unless it was simply Cindy and I in particular! [Laughs.] Our swinging friends couldn't believe it. They replied, "Those sleazy people have that opinion of us?" This is what we swingers say to adult-entertainment workers: "You people will sleep with anybody. We know it's a job, but still we think that's kind of bad." They say to us, "You let your wives and your girlfriends get screwed by somebody else, while we go home to our girlfriends or boyfriends." That's the argument from both sides.

CINDY: Swingers are forever saddled with the hackneyed theme of group orgies. Certain people are into group sex. But nine times out of ten, swingers get into one-on-one types of relationships. Orgies mainly occur at either socials or conventions.

RIC: We ran a dance social about six months ago in Venice, in a nice old hotel ballroom. A couple of our lesbian friends in tuxedos served drinks. Everybody dressed up. If there had been a Bible study group next door, and they looked into the dance, they wouldn't have guessed in a million years that we were a group of swingers.

HUSTLER: Loving Alternatives invites participants to print an address to respond to, rather than the publisher itself forwarding responses. Are people receiving responses?

CINDY: We get phone calls all the time.

RIC: Before they even place an ad, many couples call up and say, "We've bought ads in lots of contact magazines and gotten no responses. Is your magazine for real?" We tell 'em we aren't in it for profit. We're believers. Not a lot of contact publications in the country are run by a couple actually involved in the lifestyle.

HUSTLER: What are some of the factors that determine whether a new couple will succeed or fail at swinging?

CINDY: First-timers are mainly afraid that people are going to accost them, a touchy-feely-grabby sort of thing. They might feel more comfortable getting to know the scene by watching for a while before becoming more actively involved. RIC: Prior expectations have a lot to do with failure or success. Positive expectations that lead to disappointment might be that a couple thinks they'll find another couple with whom they can become an extended family right off the bat. As for negative expectations, Cindy's example is good. A couple may feel that if they go to a swingers party, they'll be raped.

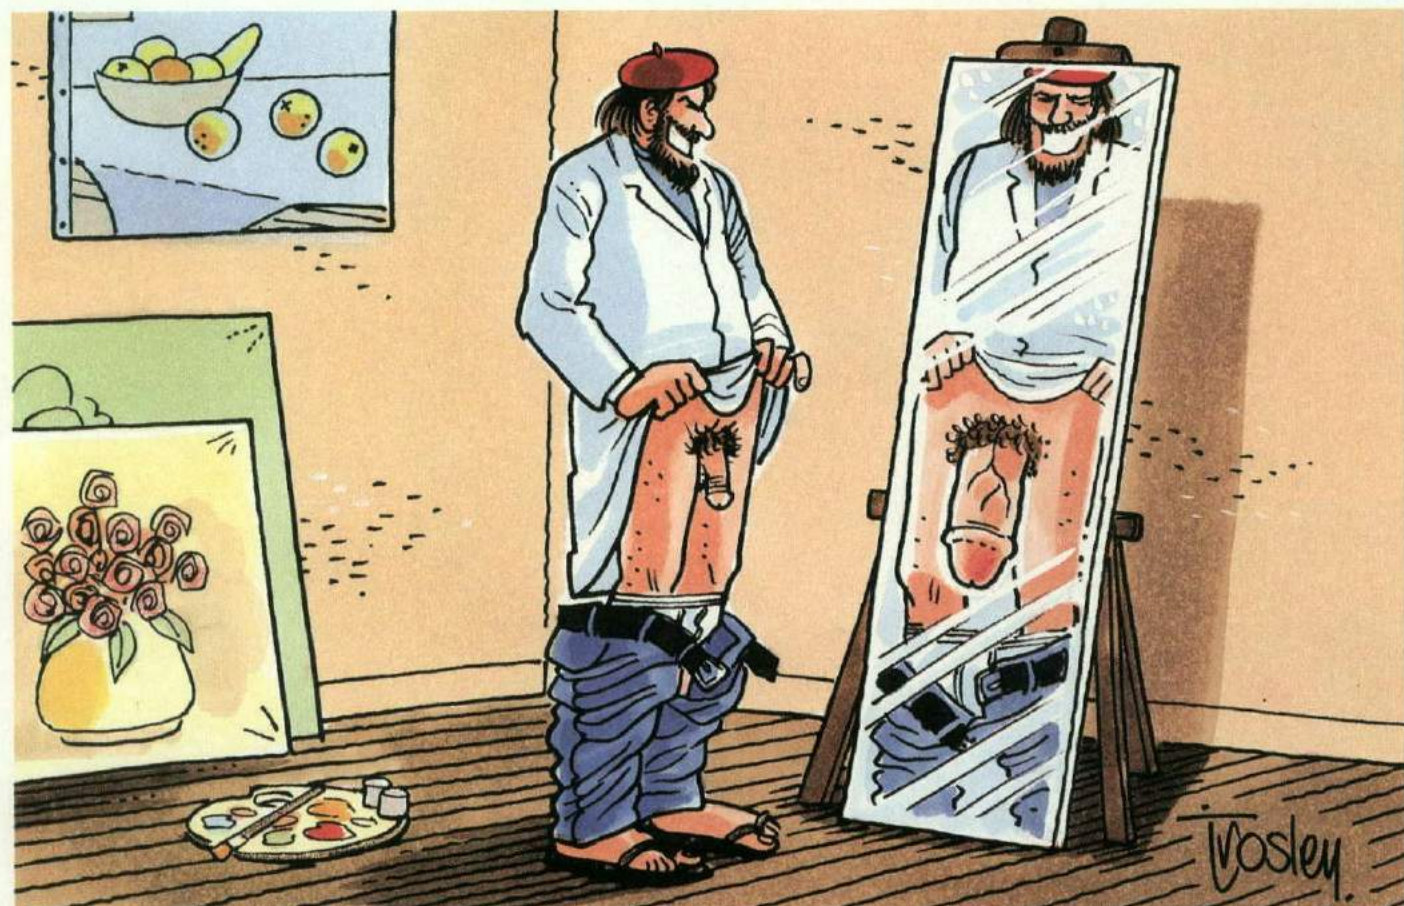

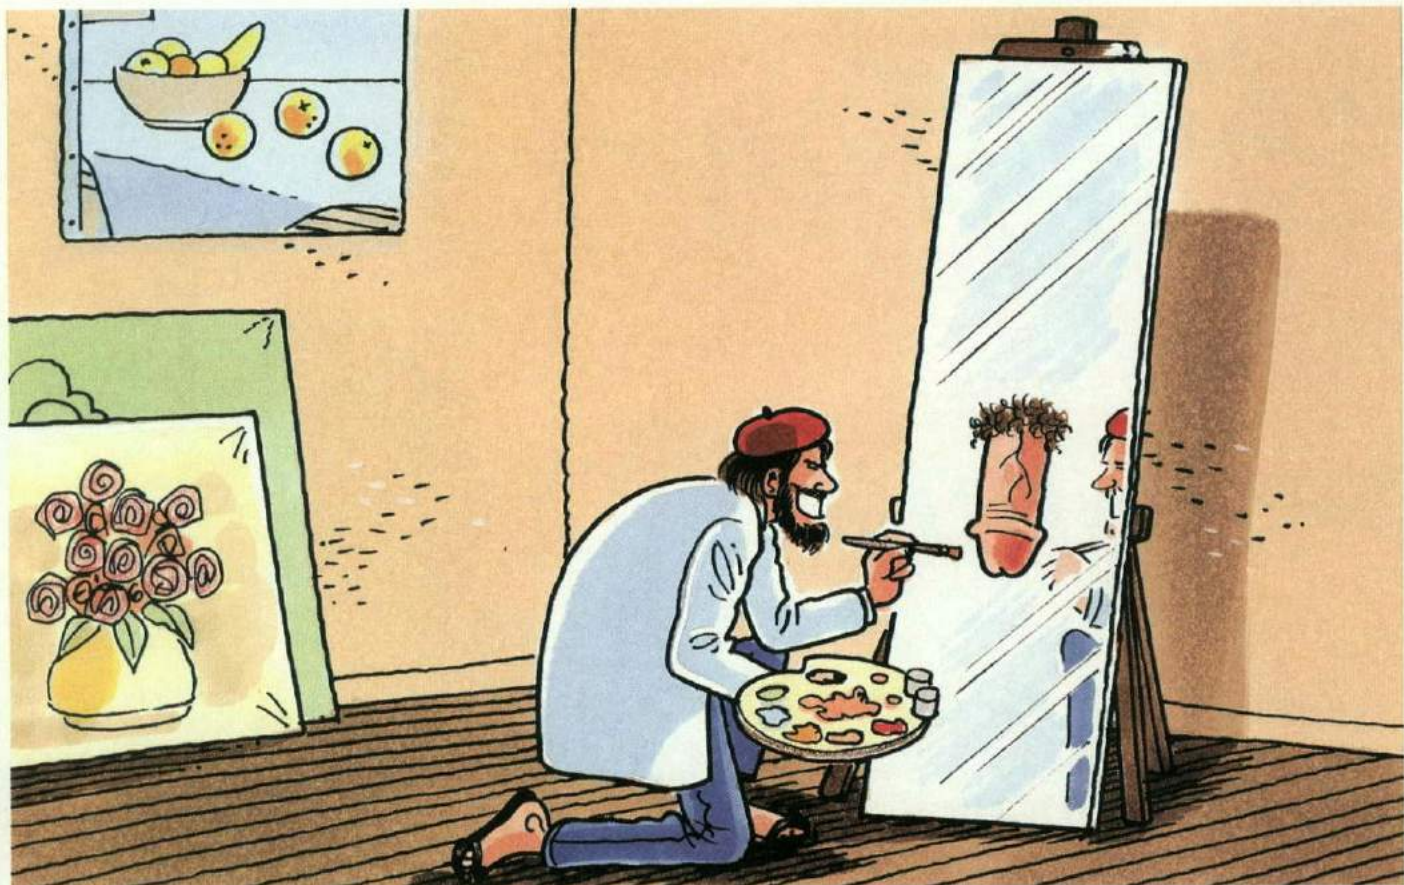

CINDY: I'd say most couples get into swinging because the guy wants to. And most couples who quit the lifestyle do so because the man thinks that his wife or his girlfriend is having too much fun.

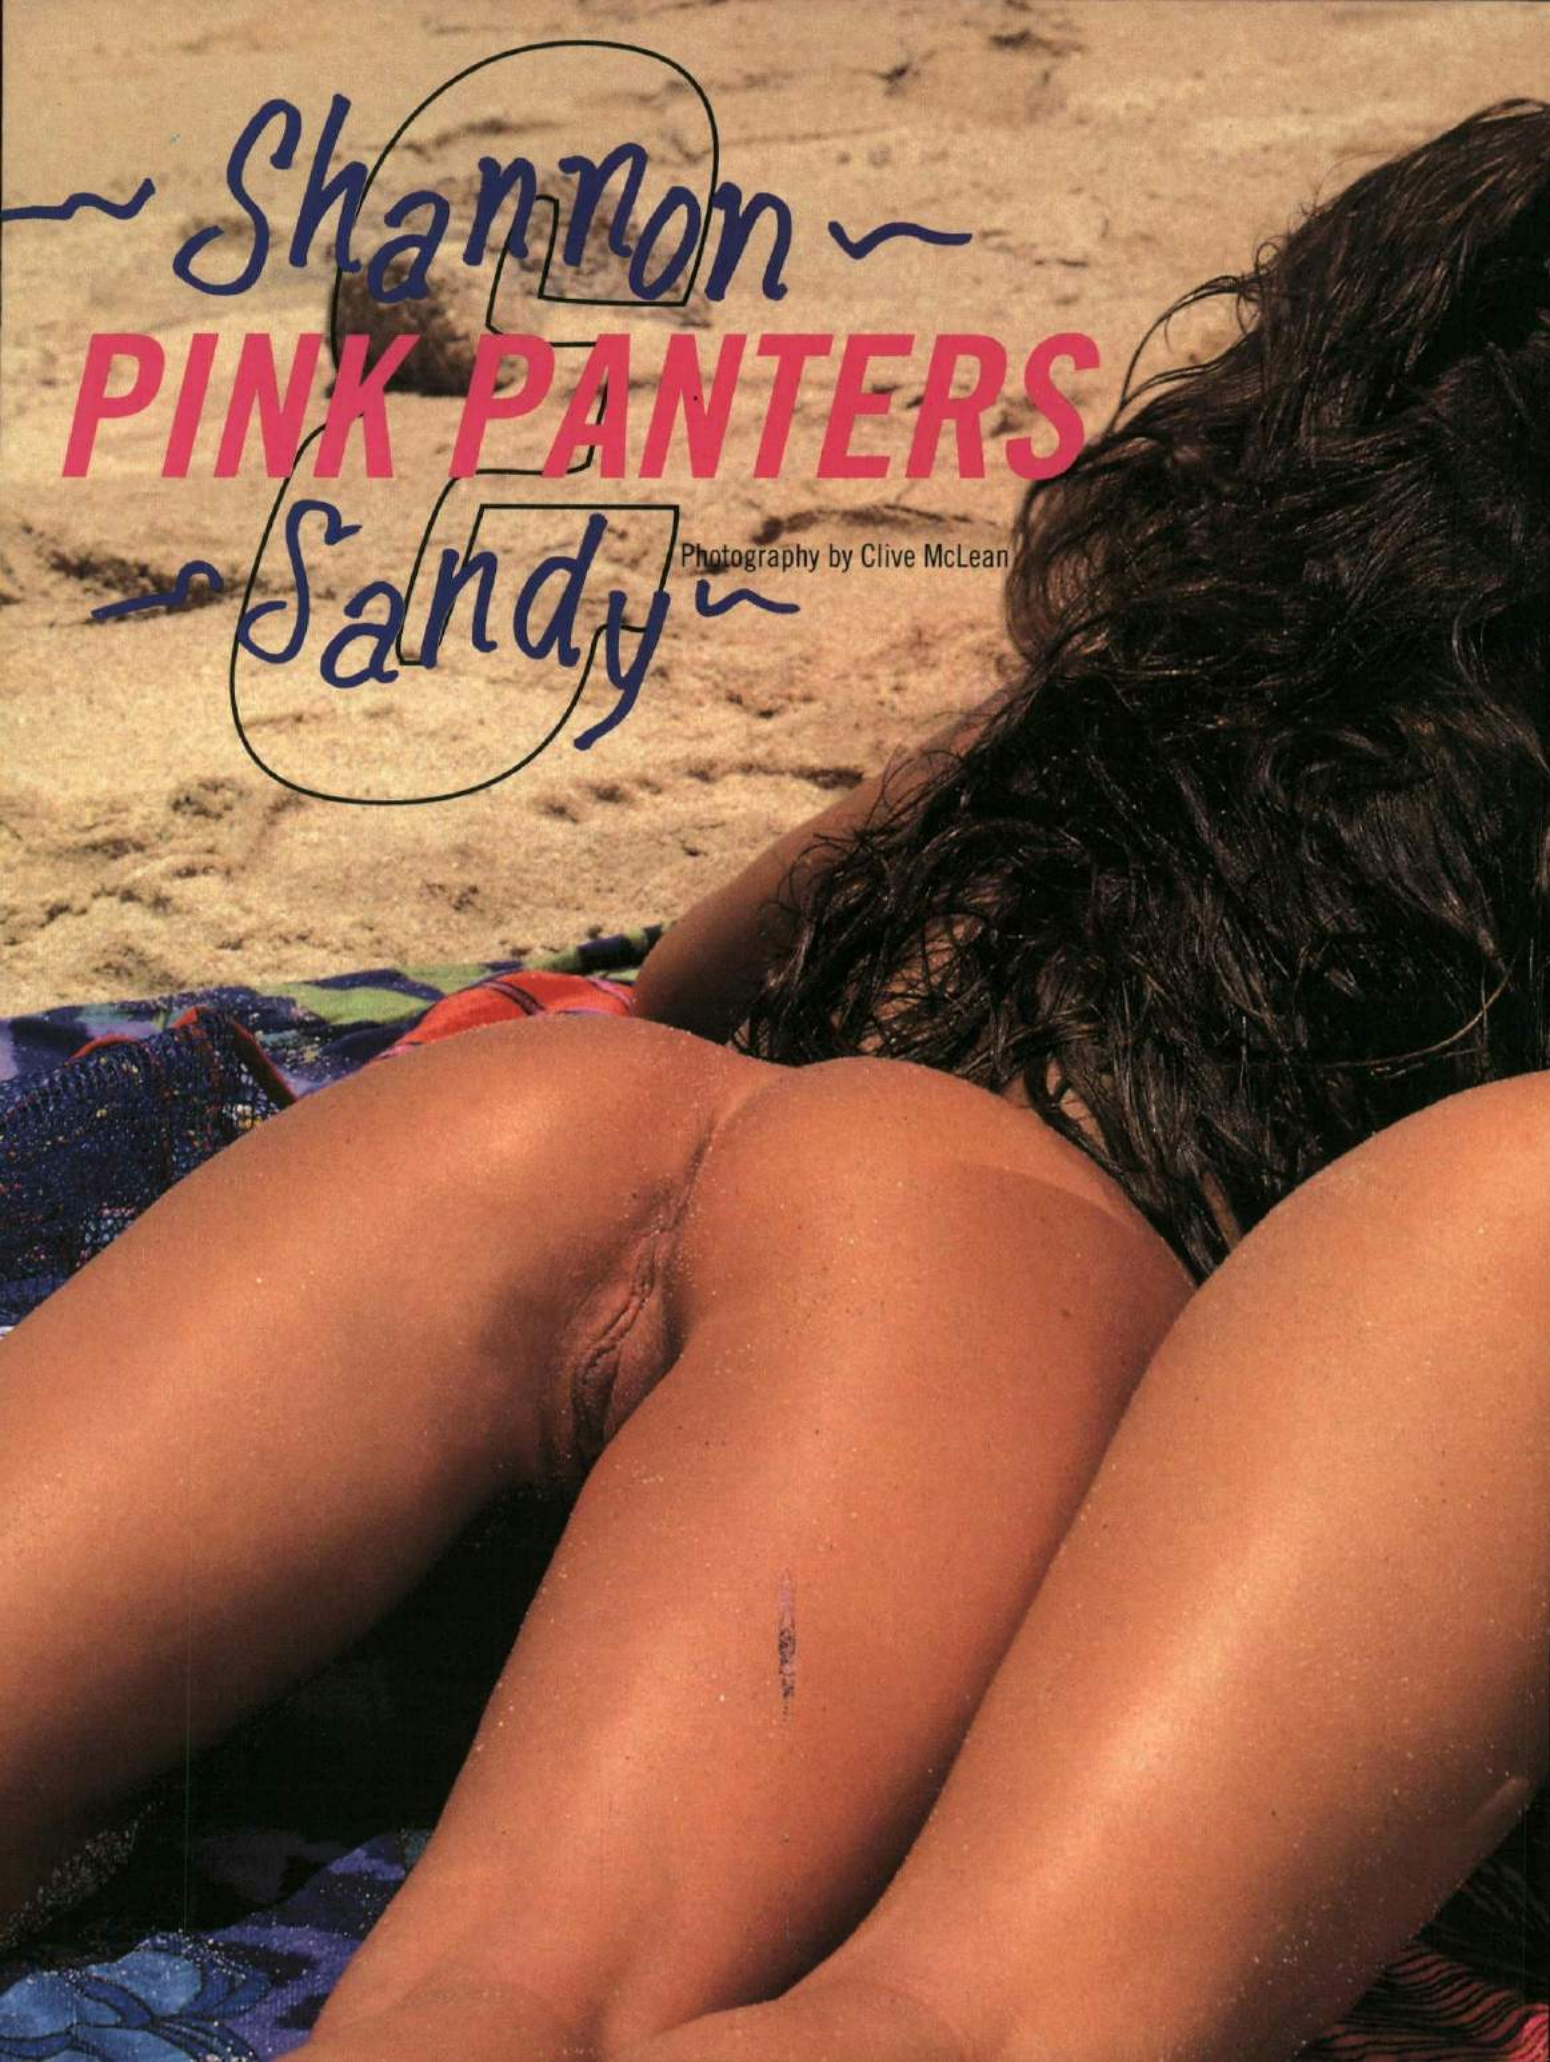

RIC: Here's a typical scenario of a failed attempt to swing: A guy doesn't have the greatest love life at home. He brings his mate and his poor lovemaking skills to a party filled with experienced swingers. His wife or girlfriend decides to make the best of the situation. She picks a compatible partner, and she enjoys herself, and she also

"It's impossible for us to walk down the street together," complains raven-haired Shannon.

"I can't even give Shannon a little peck on the cheek without causing a car wreck," pipes up golden-headed Sandy.

"And if my hand accidentally brushes against Sandy's bottom...." Shannon rolls her eyes. "This beach is the only place where we can hang out and be affectionate."

fered in no way from the behavior of the Nazis. Twenty-five OSS art-recovery officers signed a protest that read, in part: "We wish to state that from our own knowledge, no historical grievance will rankle so long, or be the cause of so much justified bitterness, as the removal, for any reason, of a part of the heritage of any nation, even if that heritage may be interpreted as a prize of war."

Walter Farmer, an architect from Cincinnati, Ohio, and the ranking American officer at the Weisbaden collection point, wrote to his wife: "This is the first time that America has stolen the cultural heritage of another country. We are no less and no better than the Germans."

After a display in the National Gallery of Art in Washington, the U.S. government returned the controversial paintings to the Kaiser Friedrich Museum in Berlin.

U.S. government officials weren't alone in their eagerness to purloin Nazi booty. States Kenneth Alford, author of The Spoils of World War II: The American Military's Role in the Stealing of Europe's Treasures: "The U.S. Army, after defeating the German army, proceeded to pillage the German nation. Enlisted men, officers, WACs and nurses united in a festive treasure hunt that ranged across Germany into Austria and Czechoslovakia. Looting was so widespread that it was regarded as soldierly sport."

In June 1990, priceless works from the church in which King Henry I of Saxony, sometimes called the founder of Germany, was supposedly buried surfaced in Whitewright, Texas, near the Oklahoma border.

Constituting one of the world's greatest art thefts—in the words of Florentina Mutherich, former deputy director of Munich's Institute for Art History—Allied Army officer Joe Meador, an art lover serving in the 87th Armored Field Artillery Division, quietly mailed to his Texas home a medieval manuscript titled The Four Gospels, written in gold ink and bound in a gold cover set with jewels—"rare beyond belief," according to London art historian Richard Camber. After his return to the States, Meador never attempted to sell the precious artifact. When he died in 1980, his brother and sister arranged for a U.S. lawyer to broker a sale through a Bavarian agent. In 1990, the German Cultural Foundation of the States bought the Gospel for $3 million.

At present, all information pertaining to the U.S. government's collection of stolen art remains a CIA secret. ☪ meets bisexual women and explores a few fantasies of her own. The word gets around that the guy is pretty bad... CINDY: ...but his wife is great!

RIC: So, completely frustrated, he says, "This is no good," and pulls his mate out with him.

HUSTLER: You recommend that couples meet in neutral places and start out a little more slowly instead of heading directly to the party scene.

RIC: Cindy and I have been accused of not swinging properly because we don't go to party houses. But we don't have anything against that scene. There are people whose only interest is watching. Others simply enjoy hanging out with swingers because they're fun people.

CINDY: As beginners, Ric and I planned only to watch and be watched. Watching led to cross-touching, and then to swapping and then to same-room sex. As people get more involved, parameters change. They might get a scare and scale back. It's constantly changing, and it's always different with each couple you meet.

RIC: It's an adventure. There are surprises. When it works, there's nothing more satisfying. Cindy and I have had some of the greatest times of our lives sitting naked with other couples, sharing dessert and coffee at one or two in the morning.

HUSTLER: Party houses all over the nation are listed in Loving Alternatives.

RIC: The demographics are surprising. More swingers clubs exist in Nashville than Los Angeles.

CINDY: There is a great undercurrent of swingers out there. You just have to know where to look—in Loving Alternatives!

RIC: In the United States, there are only about 100 legitimate swingers clubs. Only around 60 really active clubs put out newsletters that publicize events and social activities for the community. Cindy and I suspect that for every couple actively swinging, ten other couples are curious enough to fantasize about it. We feel it's important for people who are experienced in the community to get the word out in a responsible manner. The people who operate the clubs and publish the magazines ought to take a leadership role. The benefits of that would be enormous.

HUSTLER: In closing, what's the absolute best thing about swinging?

RIC: The adventure.

CINDY: [Laughs.] Besides the sex? Ninety percent of the men in the lifestyle are fantastic cooks. ☪

"I'm glad I've got a big one. A large cock is a definite asset to my game. If a woman's shelling out her dough for cock, she's happier to be buying in pounds, not ounces."

shelling out her dough for cock, she's happier to be buying in pounds, not ounces."

Mark's Colleagues: "I never know guys who do what I do. I'm not drawn to the type of man who takes money from women he fucks, but I meet a few when I check in at Louie's. I'd rather not talk to these guys, but they insist. If I'm not free to leave, I hear their stories through, and I try to factor out how much of what they say is untrue."

"I try to counsel the younger ones. I suggest hairdressing school. Most of them won't make it on commissions from Louie alone; they need something to fall back on, a source of steady income that also brings in a steady stream of females. Some of Louie's boys are timid about calling a whore a whore. They tell themselves that they're only doing it for extras. They're not much better than freelance amateurs who settle for gifts instead of cash. Why do I want something if I have to take it back to the store just to get my money?"

"For the lower orders, it can get weird and skanky and hand to mouth. These poor bastards are one missed fix away from doing a faggot."

Mark Is Not a Fag: "I'm an incredibly sexual person, who's never had a gay feeling. But what do you do when a lady wants two guys, and you're one of the guys? I admit it; it's happened any number of times, and I like to watch the other man work. If one car mechanic admires the work of another car mechanic, does that mean the first mechanic is gay? Of course it does not. There has even been occasion when my penis touched the penis of my co-worker, and still I got off. Is that bad?"

Mark's Career Centers: "New York and L.A. are the gigolo capitals of America—it stands to reason. Power women. Career women. Bad marriages. Money everywhere. Still, every cow town has its lady killer, the young guy who likes to be pampered out of the purse of a woman, and doesn't mind pampering her pussy in return."

Mark's Occupational Hazards: "Herpes really cuts into a guy's money time. Syphilis, gonorrhea, shit like that will give a man pause, but he can start up again in a matter of weeks. I'm very fortunate never to have contracted herpes, and I pray I never do."

"AIDS is more worrisome to the clients than the suppliers. Some women feel the responsible stance is to only play safe sex. They'll want a condom the first two or three times they do a guy, then they'll assume he's clean, as long as he doesn't spurt blood on the mirror while he's shooting up in the bathroom."

"Jealous husbands are not good. Obviously I can't take a bodyguard out on the job, but Louie knows people who will track down and fuck up anybody who fucks with me. I'm his investment."

"The law is not a concern."

"I was warned, by a woman I'd loosely tied with silk scarves and mock whipped, that I risked becoming jaded and wouldn't be able to fuck without money exchanging as foreplay. She was wrong."

"I'm always seeing chicks who I'd like to bang, which is the main drawback of this life. The client wants to patronize a certain bistro. We go there, and sometimes I see somebody I know, or a broad I'm wanting to fuck. The broad I want to fuck takes a look at me and my client, and the broad never thinks I'm out with my mother or my aunt."

Mark Fucks Older Women: "Most of them think they're still really hot. Pride dies hard in the female. You can see the sexual power they wielded in the past. You see it in the possessions, the divorce housing, the alimony expenses. The women don't want to catch you looking and seeing that those glory days are gone. At my best, I'm like a therapist who does past-lives regression, going back with them to bygone years when they were stone foxes, and even a guy like me was a quivering rod of jelly in their hands. This is my job; it helps pass the time if I get into it."

"Most of the women who buy sex are filthy. Remember, they've been doing it for a long time. Usually, they've been enthralled by at least one abusive bastard who has fucked them over and around and put them through a sexual gauntlet. Naturally, he's the one they fixate on; so every vile act he ever forced on them, they pass on to me. If I hadn't been able to acquire a taste for giving rimjobs, I never would have lasted."

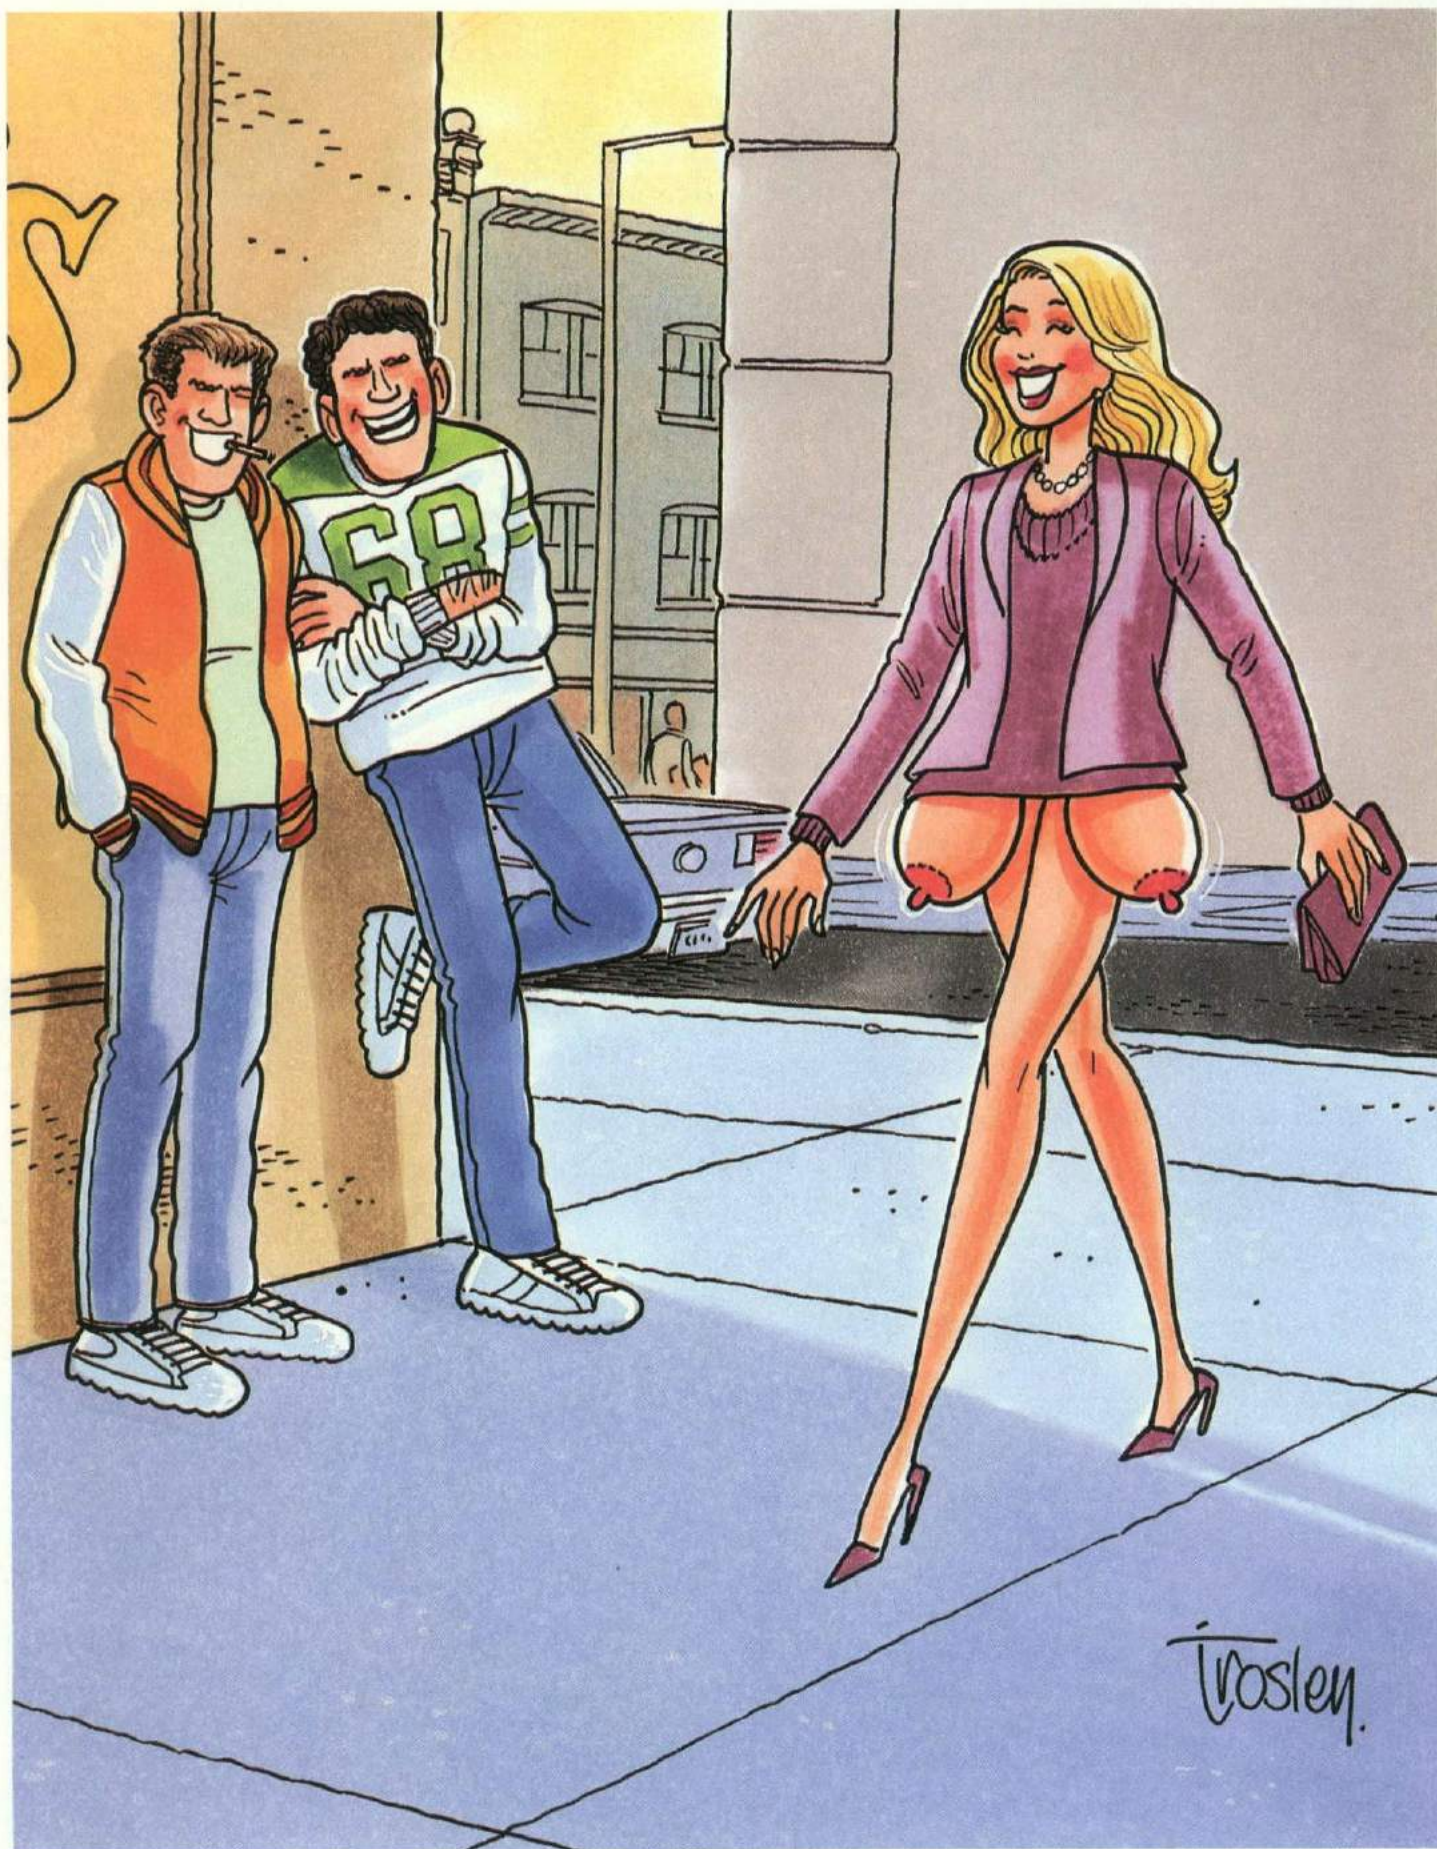

"These women are never demanding, unless they don't get exactly what they want."

Mark and the Advance of Time: "Aging is a plus for the savvy hustler. That maturing, George Hamilton look can be taken for a long run."

Mark's Regrets: "Everybody's had a few. I know I'll be too old to pull off this routine one day, but the positions will never be reversed. I'll never pay for sex."

"I like the ladies, and I'm smart enough to hook one before it's too late. I'll take care of her, and she'll take care of me." 🍆

"I can always tell when a girl isn't wearing a bra...."

sensation on how AIDS affects seniors. On a national level, the AARP includes AIDS updates in its literature, and other seniors organizations are following suit.

Regardless of age, the advice from counselors and doctors is pretty much the same:

- Be cautious of the people with whom you have sex, and always use a condom. If possible, both partners should have an AIDS test before beginning penetrative sex.
- Be aware that serial monogamy is no protection from HIV.
- Avoid drugs, and be careful with alcohol in any situation where you might have unsafe sex.
- Don't be afraid to talk.

This last point is crucial. Today's elderly were raised in an era when sex was taboo and not something to be discussed openly. It's an important part of most seniors' lives, but they're too embarrassed to bring it up, even with their doctors.

"Many older people find themselves suddenly divorced or widowed and facing a social scene that they don't have much experience with," says Patti Britton, a sex counselor and HIV/AIDS prevention specialist in New York. "Younger people have usually had sexuality education in the public schools. Older people, especially if they're freshly out of long-term committed relationships, may need a refresher course. There can be discomfort with sexuality and with talking about it."

But Judy Fink of the AARP is confident that older people have the ability to talk to each other, and will use it to stave off the epidemic in their community: "Robert Butler at Mount Sinai Medical Center in New York talks about the first language of sex and the second language of sex, and included in the second language is a strong ability to communicate, because the hormones aren't raging like they do when we're 18. It's very helpful when it comes time to discuss with our partners our health status and theirs. Unprotected sex even once is one time too many."

Just ask Harry W., who preaches the gospel of safe sex to his skeptical friends and former co-workers. "I may not live to see my grandkids graduate high school," he says. "But I'm going to make damn sure that my friends don't miss it."

For further information on AIDS and the elderly, contact the following:

Glorious Christi doesn't have to buy a stairway to heaven—she's sitting on it. The 30-year-old Minneapolis, Minnesota, dancer spends her off-hours skating, fucking and traveling extensively. Her fantasies are too numerous to name, but most of them involve at least three participants.

What does this Chicago, Illinois, entertainer do for an encore? Ravishing Regina whips herself into dazzling shape by working out and dancing. A real go-getter, the tantalizing 20-year-old is studying hard to become a porn "STAR" one day.

This customer-service representative must get plenty of returns. Steamy Jillita of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, likes to cool off by shedding her clothes outdoors. The torrid 28-year-old has two lofty goals: to have sex with another woman, and to appear in a HUSTLER pictorial.

"Make sure you get my best side." Beauteous Becky, a hard-working student from Brantford, Ontario, Canada, likes to read, study and go running after class. If only her professors knew what the tight-bodied 25-year-old daydreams about during class.

HUNT MOTEL

Dainty Donna Marie, an Owensound, Ontario, Canada, homemaker, believes that having "hot, wet sex" is the most pleasant way to pass the time of day. The daring 32-year-old wants to fuck a "handsome, tall, muscular, dark-haired man" near a babbling brook while hikers pass by. Talk about wet dreams.

"Delicious Deseria" is the epitome of good taste. The Doraville, Georgia, 21-year-old dances for a living and for fun, and in her favorite fantasy she fucks "two or more men" at once. There's just enough of this succulent dish to go around.

Alluring Alex, torn between her favorite pursuits of reading and bondage, comes up with a simple solution. The 27-year-old Killeen, Texas, exotic dancer plans to perform the Houdini-like feat of reading Of Human Bondage while having sex underwater.

This irresistible Little Rock, Arkansas, receptionist had better be kept safely under wraps the next time a certain hometown boy returns for a visit. Adorable Tori, who's 23 years old, keeps fit through "sexercise," and is working her way up to lifting one guy while another spots her.

Cute Cathy of Jacksonville, Florida, said she'd send her photo in only if she could keep her panties on. The 24-year-old waitress digs craftmaking and fucking, and is eager to find a pretty, young girl who'll lick her pussy until she comes, while her boyfriend watches.

Manly yes, but squeaky-clean dancer Angel likes it too. This heavenly 21-year-old from Independence, Missouri, reads, shops and goes to clubs for recreation, and she thinks it would be fun to cheer her boyfriend on while he fucks another woman. Rah-rah.

There's nothing more lovely than the sight of a girl putting on stockings. Luscious Lucy from faraway Aberdeen, Scotland, likes to go swimming when she's not mixing nasty-smelling stuff in the laboratory, and the bashful 23-year-old's goal is "to be published for all to see." She came to the right place.

Thanks to her entry, incredible Kay of Crescent Springs, Kentucky, should soon become widely known. The 39-year-old construction worker names fishing, fucking and "the Great Outdoors" as her pastimes, and her fantasy was to appear in Beaver Hunt.

THE WORLD'S BEST SELLING PENIS
DEVELOPER NOW
OFFERED AT A FRACTION OF ITS ORIGINAL PRICE!

Have you ever been embarrassed by the size of your penis? Have you tried to convince yourself it's not how big it is but how you use it? As long as your sex partner needs to be completely filled, you owe it to yourself to do something about a larger penis now!

Our penis developer will increase penis length, thickness, and make your erection harder and stiffer.

Did you know a woman's vagina will stretch and enlarge to accommodate a large penis? Imagine her excitement as you penetrate deeper than you ever have before.

How does our penis developer increase your penis length and diameter?

The answer is called hypermia, a medical term to describe blood filling into caverns of your penis. The caverns expand causing your penis to grow in size and diameter. The superior pump action and sealed vacuum of our penis developer urges your penis to grow to mammoth proportions. Our penis developer is not just a vibrator like some electric units you may see advertised. Remember, it is the precise slow super pumping action of our space age designed penis pump that builds your penis larger than you ever dreamed possible.

Act now if you are interested in penis enlargement.

NEXT MONTH IN HUSTLER

June HUSTLER on sale April 11, 1995

BLOOMING PETALS

April showers may have brought May flowers, but get a load of the tender blossoms HUSTLER unfolds in June. Lather up with a Heather Locklear lookalike who enjoys a facial sudsing courtesy of a showering stud; grip the handlebars and hang on for the ride of one busty brunette's life as she cruises the desert on her dune buggy and squeezes life-affirming moisture from the pinkest cactus flower ever seen; relax on an overstuffed love seat with a platinum-tressed princess and help her get in touch with her inner feelings; then, get up for a hard-bodied, raven-haired harlot who peels apart her buns of steel to share a secret treasure of tenderness that resembles a tantalizingly tight, white asshole; and dive into the trenches as porn star Kylie Ireland seduces an army brat on the hood of a general's jeep. These girls do more before 6 a.m. than most babes do in a lifetime; HUSTLER in June coaxes withering stems to new heights. Prepare to pollinate.

THE DESERT UNFLOWERED

Once a year, the biggest muscle-movers and booty-shakers in the adult-entertainment industry convene in Las Vegas, Nevada, for the annual Consumer Electronics Show (CES). For one woozy weekend in January, XXX's sexiest starlets peddle their video wares, schmooze and pat themselves on the back for another year of raunchy porn fun. This year's show, however, featured controversy and confrontation along with the cooze as famous porn studs were witnessed slapping defenseless starlets, blue-screen moguls went to Fist City and rock stars helped video vixens fuck up hotel suites. Grab some backstage ass as writer Mike Albuquerque names names and endures the rigorous lays and nights of conventioning in Rears and Loathing in Las Vegas, an in-depth take on 1995's CES that the adult-film industry doesn't want you to read.

ROSES ARE RED, VIOLENCE IS BLUE

Tired of the staged histrionics of actors'-workshop wrestling? Fed up with the over-hyped hysteria of professional boxing? Switch over to the Ultimate Fighting Championships, where regulations and rounds are technicalities of the past, and the only rule is to render an adversary unconscious. To the victor go the blood spills of his opponent. Enter the ring of torture as combatants punch, pounce and kick their way through a human form of cockfighting. Correspondent Sessel Sagorin uncovers America's latest violent obsession in Blood Sport, a bruising look at how one man's pain becomes another's pleasure.

PICK A WINNER

Bits & Pieces in June places the past 12 months of centerfold Honeyys in readers' sticky fingers as we rely on our loyal followers to choose HUSTLER's 1995 Honey of the Year; forget everything ever written on steamy sensuality and hop into the sack of sexual aggression with Alex Marvel as he explores the vengeful phenomenon known as "The Grudge Fuck" in HUSTLER's Sex Play; Hot Letters turns tales of perversity into exploding escapades; and Beaver Hunt digs for undiscovered treasures as we round up homespun girls with Grand Prize-finalist potential. HUSTLER in June provides a handful of reasons to swoon. Take Five.
